MCGILL*Crooked Cubes; Captive Cities

MIAMI—Wisp curtains of rain, blown by almost unfelt breezes detached themselves from the steadily falling drops and blew up against the stately Dade County courthouse, where they seemed to disappear into the stones.

Upstairs on the fourth floor, in an impressive, somewhat gloomy room, from the walls of which peered down the faces of judges of bygone years, the grand jury wrestled with gambling.

One of the reputed top figures of the gambling underworld had been indicted and others were feeling the scrutiny of men called by the processes of American law to examine into the legal health of the county.

Slow

America has been slow to change her concept of gambling. In the early years of the Republic, gambling was a part of its frontier fabric. The Western boundary was continually advancing, taking always with it the gambler, saloon keepers, the dancehall girls and those who were the more lawless.

Since it was a part of that frontier picture, as familiar as Indians, cowboys, stage coaches and six-guns, Americans have never thought too seriously about gambling. We are a nation preoccupied with our past, as is evidenced by the conveyor belt production of Western movies and the steady sound of gun shots and cow ponies continually galloping on our TV screens. Every mopee in America knows what directors think an old-time Western gambling hall looked like.

And so, it is not strange perhaps that millions of Americans in towns which have known no underworld invasion somehow refuse to be concerned about gambling and its growing hold on American cities. To many gamblers is something seen in a Hopalong Cassidy picture, or an episode from the Saturday movie feature.

Sinister

But, actually, gambling of the 20th century no more resembles that of the 19th century than a modern bathing suit does those of grandpa's day.

The gambling of today is largely nationally controlled by immoral, un-American, vicious characters.

It is patient. And it knew, before Hitler knew it, that the place to begin is with the police. Gamblers corrupt one man. They may start with a Christmas present, or a $100 bill for some small favor. Once hooked, the gambler can't draw back. So, he goes on to larger bribes and more flagrant associations. He becomes the rotten apple in the barrel. He corrupts his partner, or a friend. There are deputy sheriffs and the sheriffs themselves go the same way. A young cop comes on wanting to do a good job. He sees his superiors taking bribes. Pressure is put on him. If he doesn't give in he gets kicked around and given bad assignments. Maybe an honest cop has a run of illness and big bills. He takes a bribe. There are many ways to pressure a man. In Chicago, there are stories of police captains who own ranches out West, and in Miami there are strange revelations of police and deputies who make average salaries but own expensive homes and drive big cars and spend money with the ease of those who know there is more where that came from.

Growth

About many of our larger cities, which soon become captive, gambling houses where roulette, dice, bird cage and other games are to be had, steadily increase. They are invariably crooked. The dice dealers can switch the doctored cubes in and out with a legerdemain worthy of a Blackstone or any other featured magician. The roulette wheels are fixed, the cards marked. The numbers racket exploits and cheats the poorest citizens. They see how law is corrupted.

Gambling has done more to discredit and endanger representative government than any other failure in the American system. It eats away steadily at the foundations of government where ever it is tolerated.

Cities wake up to find themselves literally in the control of an underworld group, or almost so. Miami, and the Beach, like every other city which has temporized with the problem, is determined to have the sort of city which her beauty, resources and potential demands. It is not easy. But the fight slowly is being won.

13 Jailed
In Looting
Of Store*Tire Theft Ring*Believed Smashed
By HOWELL JONES

A large and well-organized larceny ring that for two years systematically looted more than $2,500 in merchandise from the Sears-Robuck store in West End was believed broken by police Sunday with the arrest of 13 persons.

Officers said the ring specialized in the theft of automobile tires, gas circulating heaters and power tools. They quoted a store official as saying at least 10 tires had been reported missing since February, 1950.

One of the arrested men admitted taking 35 of the tires, Detective Harry McColister and R. E. Sheppard said.

The detectives said all of the arrested either lived or worked in the Dimmock Street, S. W., neighborhood and most of the stolen merchandise was disposed of in that section.

Jailed on charges of disorderly conduct-larceny were two employees of the store and one former employee. They were identified as Joe Dil, 38, of 1005 Sparks St., S. W.; Dallas Weems, 36, of 970 Dimmock St., S. W.; and John Mattox, 27, of 512 Connally St., S. W., all Negroes. Dil, the store official said, was discharged from the store last week.

Booked on charges of disorderly conduct-receiving stolen goods were Lozen Chandler, 52, of 968 Dimmock St.; Charles R. Whitfield, 29, of 979 Dimmock St.; Emanuel Dixon, 39, of 969 Dimmock St.; Arthur Noble, 35, of 610 Parson St.; Robert G. Byrd, 26, of R-1011 Dimmock St.; Willie Collins, 33, of 79 Solomon; Wesley Ware, 17, of 610 Parson St.; John King, 36, of 1013 Dimmock St.; and Mable Hughes, 25, of 1003 Dimmock St., all Negroes.

A white man who was not identified by police was arrested on charges of receiving stolen goods.

McColister and Sheppard said Weems told them he had taken the tires from the store and sold them at $10 each.

Police said Mattox and Dil also admitted taking several gas heaters and a power saw from the store's stock.

MOROCCANS MISTAKEN FOR REDSBORDEAUX, France, Sept. 8.

(AP)—A welcome demonstration for the Sultan of Morocco turned into a riot here Sunday when French police mistook the red Moroccan flag for a Communist banner.

As a result of the misunderstanding, some 20 demonstrators and 10 policemen were injured and the Sultan's automobile was pelted with stones.

The Sultan, who had just arrived for a state visit, was trapped with his entourage between police and the Moroccan demonstrators who carried a sign that welcomed him to France.

The Bordeaux police chief said the incident started half an hour before the Sultan disembarked from the cruiser Georges Leygues. A group of 250 Moroccans had gathered in a corner of the square, unfolded a giant welcome banner and hoisted the red Moroccan flag.

Police thought the Moroccans were Communist demonstrators and began to push them out of the square. The Moroccans resisted.

The Moroccans finally fled. But when the Sultan arrived they suddenly appeared again, breaking through the crowd and the police cordon. The Moroccans unfurled their banner and flags and blocked the passage of the Sultan and his entourage.

Demonstrators and police then engaged in a free-for-all with the Sultan's automobile in between them.

The Moroccans picked up paving-stones, sticks and rocks and hurled them at police. Although many of the missiles struck the cars, no one in the Sultan's party was reported to have been hurt. Four policemen were struck in the face.

A police charge eventually cleared the area.

200 Feet of Live Power Line

BALTIMORE, Oct. 8.—(P)—Somebody—either very experienced or just plain lucky—swiped 200 feet of a live power line of the Baltimore Transit Company Sunday.

A company trouble truck, tracing a break in its line on the outskirts of town, found the gap in the wire.

The line had been hacked in two, police said, and about 200 feet of one-inch copper cable cut off.

The company did not say how much voltage was on the line but indicated it was high.

Haircut Now Costs
85 Cents to Dollar

You'll have to dig deeper to pay for haircuts now in Atlanta.

Nearly 450 Atlanta-area barber shop owners and operators voted Sunday in a mass meeting to raise the price of haircuts to 85 cents—and some plan to charge $1. The price increase goes into effect at 8 a. m. Monday.

The hike came after the Atlanta Barber Board called on the City Barber Board to negotiate an increase. The Board, whose Chairman is W. C. Wilkerson, called a meeting of city barbers at 3 p. m. Sunday in the Dixie Ballroom at Henry Grady Hotel.

J. W. Vandhitch, Board Secretary, said local shop owners felt the move was "compulsory" due to the recent rise in the cost of living.

Prices on children's haircuts—the cost of which are the same in union barbershops as for grown-ups—will also be affected.

But there's some good news from the tonorial establishments. Prices of tonics, shaves, shampoos, manicures and allied services won't be raised.

The Secretary said the world was watching anxiously to see how the United Nations would be able to help the people of Korea.

"The combined efforts of the United Nations to rebuild Korea is an important step forward," he said. "It is not only an earnest of our intentions but shall be a practical example of what can now be done on a co-operative basis to help people raise themselves up from poverty, disease and hunger."

MacArthur Hands
N. Korea Last Call*Surrender Now or Face
New Blows, He Broadcasts*By LINDSEY PARROTTSpecial to The New York Times and The Atlanta Constitution*

TOKYO, Monday, Oct. 9.—Gen. MacArthur Monday for a second time called on the North Koreans to lay down their arms and cease hostilities in the name of the United Nations. The UN military commander warned the North Korean government that unless an immediate answer is made "I shall at once proceed to take such military action as may be necessary."

The MacArthur demand came as U. S. and British troops stood poised on the 38th Parallel, the old border between the Korean Republic and the Communist state in the north while four South Korean divisions already had crossed the line and were driving rapidly northward. Troopers of the U. S. First Cavalry Division already have crossed the thirty-eighth parallel in strength.

The message was addressed, this time, to the premier, government of North Korea, instead of to the commander in chief of the North Korean armies to whom the first demand for unconditional surrender was made Oct. 1. This first message thus far has gone unanswered.

Gen. MacArthur's demand was based on the action of the UN General Assembly Saturday adopting a resolution calling for unification of Korea under a democratic government and for free elections.

The Commander of the Allied forces promised that the UN under the terms of its resolution, will act to relieve and rehabilitate all parts of war-wrecked Korea and called upon "all North Koreans" to co-operate with the UN organization.

The message to the North Korean premier—presumably Communist Leader Kim Il Sung—was given out here in the form of a statement, in English, at 10 a. m. Sunday. The Japanese radio immediately began broadcasting a Korean translation which was also sent out from the recaptured station at Seoul.

"In order that decisions of the United Nations may be carried out with a minimum of further loss of life and destruction of property, I, as United Nations commander in chief, for the last time, call upon you and the forces under your command, in whatever part of Korea situated, to forthwith lay down your arms and cease hostilities," the message said.

The text of the UN resolution was attached to the message and was also being broadcast in the Korean translation.

Some sources here Monday considered that the second demand was made less with an idea that it will now be complied with than as a prelude to an immediate attack across the 38th parallel by United Nations troops other than South Koreans. The second message might also be calculated to further undermine the morale of the rank and file of North Korean soldiers who within the past week have been surrendering in increasing numbers.

Troops of the U. S. First Cavalry Division Monday had crossed the 38th parallel into North Korea—the first non-Korean UN force to thrust across the old artificial boundary between the Korean Republic and the Communist state to the north since the Allied offensive began last month.

The cavalry division, which called itself "the first team" and boasts it was first in Manila and first in Tokyo during the Pacific war, made the crossing north of Kaesong. Troopers had cleared the city, the last major South Korean settlement left in Communist hands, and were attacking the main highway from liberated Seoul to the enemy capital at Pyongyang. Cavalry patrols which pushed across the border Monday morning.

150 Escaped GIs
Seeking UN Lines*By CHARLES CORDDRY

U. S. FIFTH AIR FORCE, Korea, Oct. 8.—(UP)—Airmen reported Sunday a group of 150 men believed to be escaped American prisoners of war are working their way south through North Korea in an effort to reach the safety of United Nations lines.

An Air Force spokesman said the group was first sighted in a rolling, wooded area southeast of Pyongyang Saturday afternoon by an American pilot.

The pilot estimated the group at 150 to 190. They had spelled out the word "food" with mounds of earth.

The pilot reported his discovery to the airfield. Other planes flew to the spot immediately and dropped food and other equipment.

Rescue and transport planes returned to the area early Sunday but could not find the men.

"Indications point to the fact the food supplies and other equipment had been sufficient for them to scatter and start moving south individually or in small groups," the spokesman said.

From the point where the group was sighted it is about 50 miles to the safety of the U. S. First Cavalry Division's lines along the thirty-eighth parallel north of Kaesong.

The prisoners are believed to be from among 3,000 Americans held by the Reds around the North Korean capital of Pyongyang and in Sariwon, 35 miles south.

Experience at Seoul indicated the Communists probably tried to move the prisoners north ahead of advancing United Nations troops.

It was believed possible the prisoners may have escaped their Communist captors while on the road. Four American prisoners who escaped their captors near the thirty-eighth parallel last week said they merely sat down in a ditch and waited for the rest of the column to march past.

New lists of meat and vegetable prices have been posted in the markets.

Pat Campbell Trial,
Carroll Case Slated

Courtrooms in Conyers and Carrollton are expected to be packed this week when re-trials open in two Georgia slaying cases.

Re-trial of R. P. (Pat) Campbell, Carroll County Negro, for the Oct. 31, 1948 slaying of a Georgia Tech student, Carl (Buddy) Stevens, Jr., will probably begin Tuesday, Sheriff J. D. Gaston said.

Campbell is under a six-to-10 year sentence. Henderson received a death sentence on conviction of killing Stevens when the student defended a girl companion against an attempted attack.

The Carroll County Superior Court this week also has scheduled a murder trial of Jesse Arrington, charged with the shotgun slaying of H. L. Rook, Jr., and manslaughter trial of Albert Knight, Negro, on charges he killed his brother, Elbert Knight. Campbell, a former legislator, was convicted last Nov. 18 of voluntary manslaughter in the fatal shooting of 21-year-old Edwards during a roadside argument.

Campbell's plea for a new hearing was granted by the Georgia Court of Appeals, which ruled Judge Frank Guess erred when he pressed the jury for a verdict on grounds the trial was expensive.

Judge Guess will be on the bench Monday.

Death sentence of Henderson caused protest from Georgia Communist leaders which eventually sent them to jail for contempt of court.

The high court reversed the Carroll Superior Court verdict on grounds circumstantial evidence failed to exclude every "reasonable doubt."

The Committee also urged that President Truman replace Dean Acheson as Secretary of State with someone "who will gather around him advisors dedicated to eliminating the forces of Communism everywhere."

'Hardware' Costs More, Army Says

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8—(AP)—The Army said Sunday it is spending 500 percent more for "hardware"—guns, tanks, ammunition and other weapons—than was planned before the Korean war and the rearmament program. Similarly, it said the outlay for equipment to be sent to the Atlantic Pact Allies under the Military Defense Assistance Program has been upped 400 percent.

The Army set forth its report in a press release summarizing expenditures on major items under the present program. It came at a time when the House Armed Services Committee was inquiring into military plans to build up national defense.

"Prior to the conflict in Korea," the report said, "the Army had intended, in fiscal year 1951, to spend about $312,000,000 for the guns, tanks, ammunition, armored vehicles and other material which constitute 'major' equipment, and it had requested that sum as its basic budget estimate. However, since the Communist invasion began in Korea this figure has been upped $1,650,000,000 to a total of about $2,000,000,000."

The Army said it planned originally to spend about $500,000,000 for procurement of material for the Atlantic Pact defense program during the current fiscal year.

Now it estimates that of the new funds recently approved by Congress an additional $2,000,000,000 will be spent for equipment to meet MDAF requirements.

The Ordnance Corps, which buys the Army's "hardware," will spend 57.8 percent of the total military budget this year, the Army estimated.

Among ordnance contracts for major weapons are these:

- Cadillac Division of General Motors Corporation, light tanks.
- Continental Motors Corporation, engines for light and medium tanks.
- American Car and Foundry Company, 105-millimeter howitzer motor carriages.
- International Harvester Company, armored utility vehicles.

Europe Arms Plan Needs More Billions

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8—(AP)—The Truman Administration probably will have to ask Congress early next year for billions to help Europe increase its own arms production. The funds would be in addition to those already provided and planned for actual fighting tools.

This became apparent Sunday as State and Defense Department officials rushed preparations for a series of high-level meetings with European leaders on setting up and equipping an International Army powerful enough to defend Western Europe against Russia.

Expectations are this force may eventually total around 75 to 80 divisions, including both American and German contingents. How to provide it with weapons, and how to pay for the production of those weapons without unbalancing the still lean economies of Western Europe is one of the most critical problems now under discussion among the 12 Atlantic Treaty nations.

Hugh Gaitskell, Britain's Minister for Economic Affairs, arrived here Sunday for talks with Treasury Secretary Snyder and other American officials. The impact of rearmament on British recovery will be a major subject.

French Finance Minister Maurice Petesch will arrive late in the week to press France's case for large-scale American financial help and to urge acceptance of French proposals for creation of a defense financial pool among the Atlantic Pact powers.

On Oct. 24 the Defense Ministers of all 12 Treaty nations will gather in Washington to pass on military staff plans for the organization of the international force.

An important part of the Defense Committee's work will be to determine the size of the force, and the amount and types of equipment it will need by specified dates.

Enough information is already available to indicate that the funds which Congress voted in the last session for foreign arms aid—to totaling $5,225,000,000—are only a starter.

There is some worry lest a public and Congressional letdown after victory in Korea may make more money hard to get.

An indication of the Europeans' own estimate of the help they need comes from Britain's request two months ago for $1,500,000,000 from the United States, to be spread over a three-year period.

The British Government informed Washington that with this much help it could carry through a three-year $9,520,000,000 rearmament program.

The State Department has advised London it considers $500,000,000 a year for three years as too much in relation to the effort Britain itself proposes to undertake. In other words, Washington thinks the British can do more with their own resources.

The British have agreed with American officials that the initial problem is how much aid Britain and other European countries can expect immediately on a short-range basis.

To handle this limited problem the Administration has in present appropriations about $4,500,000,000 for Western Europe. But the bulk of this must be used, officials said, for weapons in finished form. Only about $475,000,000 may be used directly in aiding European production.

Some aid may be furnished indirectly. One indirect means is what the government calls "off-shore purchases"—buying arms with dollars from factories in France, Britain or elsewhere.

That would help Western Europe meet its need for American money and thereby take some of the pressure off requests from that area for "free dollars."

UN To Speed Relief To Liberated Korea

Dulles To Ask Troop Aid To Back Acheson Plan

LAKE SUCCESS, Oct. 8—(AP)—United Nations machinery goes into high gear this week to speed relief to Korea in the wake of military advances and U. N. Assembly political action guaranteeing

All organs of the UN—the new Korean Commission, the economic and social council, the specialized agencies for health, feeding and technical assistance, and the UN staff—are working on plans to co-ordinate the program authorized by the assembly in its 47 to 5 vote Saturday.

Secretary-General Trygve Lie said the Emergency Relief Program alone now totals more than $34,000,000 and is growing. The long-term rehabilitation program to set Korea on its feet again cannot be guessed at until the new Seven-Nation Korean Commission gets into the country for a survey.

Lie prepared over the week-end a detailed report on emergency needs to present to the economic and social council Tuesday. He said the council should have its first Korean relief and rehabilitation plan shaped in three weeks.

Lie emphasized in a UN radio broadcast that "it is essential that all member nations bear in mind the high significance of this phase, not only for the people of Korea but for the peace and stability of the world."

Diplomats and UN officials have been preaching—ever since the Korean unity and rehabilitation program was broached in the UN over Russian opposition—that UN forces have proved aggression can be stopped and now the UN must prove it can help reconstruct the country.

The outlines of the program were hammered out in political committee and General Assembly debates in two weeks—fast time in UN procedure. The Sunday recess and important debates beginning Monday on a U. S. peace program furnished only slight delay to getting the ponderous and far-flung UN machinery moving.

John Foster Dulles, Republican adviser to the U. S. delegation in the UN, opened the political committee debates Monday morning

Tech Alumni Plan Memorial

Plans to erect a physical-training building as a memorial to the late Coach William A. Alexander will be discussed Wednesday at the first postwar dinner meeting of Georgia Tech alumni in the Greater Atlanta area.

A small-scale model of the Alexander Memorial Building—to be erected on Rose Bowl field—will be shown at the meeting in the Dinkler Room at the Ansley Hotel.

Although the meeting is limited to alumni living in the Greater Atlanta area, a special invitation has been issued to Charles C. Brady, of Johannesburg, South Africa, Georgia Tech tackle in 1933-35. Brady, who came here from his home to visit his alma mater, will be made chairman of the South African Alexander Memorial Fund.

Hosts for the dinner will be Col. Blake R. Van Leer, President of Georgia Tech; George W. McCarty, President of Georgia Tech Alumni Foundation; Oscar G. Davis, President of Georgia Tech Alumni Association; Robert L. MacDougall, General Chairman, and John O. Chiles, Co-Chairman, of the Alexander Memorial Committee.

Tobin Brands Job Bans as Unpatriotic

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8—(AP)—Secretary of Labor Tobin Sunday branded "unfair and unpatriotic" reported instances of employment discrimination against workers subject to military service.

Tobin said he is receiving numerous complaints that members of Reserve components of the Armed Services and those subject to the draft are being refused jobs and promotions, and in some instances being discharged because of their liability to military service.

He said the department will aid industry in replacing those who go into uniform, and added that the difficulty of employers is small compared with the sacrifice made by those called to the colors.

Strong West Can Prevent War-McCloy

Reminds Aggressor Of Allies' Pledge

FRANKFURT, Germany, Oct. 8 (AP)—American High Commissioner John J. McCloy told the German people Sunday night the United States is convinced that a strong West now building can prevent war.

The recent New York conference of the Western Foreign Ministers and the North Atlantic Treaty powers marked a "turning point on the road to European security," McCloy said.

"We do not believe that war is inevitable," he declared in a German language broadcast over six West German radio stations.

Referring to what he called West German concern over German security, McCloy said the proposed United Army for the defense of Europe will become "a vital force within a short time."

The Western Allies are sending more troops to West Germany and have pledged to regard an attack on Western Berlin or West Germany as an attack on themselves, he added.

"No nation and no group of men should underestimate the meaning of these decisions," McCloy said.

He cautioned the German people against believing talk that the foreign ministers granted wide concessions to the West German

4 Sleeping Children Suffocated By Smoke From Blazing Armchair

ST. ALBANS, Vt., Oct. 8—(AP)—Four sleeping children died of suffocation in their beds early Sunday when a fire lasting only three minutes broke out in a two-story wooden house here.

Fire Chief James Cioffi, Jr., said the blaze was caused by a lighted cigarette which ignited an upholstered arm chair in the first-floor living room. The flames did not reach the children's upstairs room.

The children, victims of thick smoke which infiltrated their bedroom, were 8-month-old Harold Bluto, his sisters Donna, 4, and July, 6, and brother Keith, 12.

The children's uncle, Almon Bluto, 32, was hospitalized with severe burns.

Cioffi said the parents, Mr. and Mrs. Almon Bluto, were not at home when the fire started about 12:30 a. m. The father was at work as a brakeman on the Central Vermont railroad and did not learn of the tragedy until four hours later.

The mother had left the house about an hour before the fire broke out. She was en route home in a taxicab when firemen arrived at the smoke-filled dwelling.

government in an effort to "buy" German military help against the East.

"I urge the German people not to be misled by such suggestions," the high commissioner said. "The fact that the United States and the Western Nations are not bargaining for German help and they do not intend to do so. We are neither 'buying' allies nor are we coercing any."

Though no definite decisions on German rearmament have been taken, he said these two points are clear:

1. "Any German contribution would have to be on a just basis and within the framework of an integrated European defense. That means that no National German Army will be permitted."

2. "The Western Allies fully recognize that a German contribution (to Western Defense) is possible or desirable only if the people, the Parliament and the government, of Western Germany actively favor and support it."

Any German role in European defense must be directed by men with firm democratic convictions, McCloy said.

Tech Asking Additional State Money

President Blake R. Van Leer will tell the Board of Regents in his annual report that the State should furnish more than twice as much money to Georgia Tech as it does now.

Citing an increase in operating costs of 273 percent over the past ten years, Van Leer said the soaring overhead has been caused by a tremendous boost in enrollment, inflated operational costs and teacher salary jumps.

He added that income has not kept pace proportionately with cost increases.

"The solution sometimes suggested for this problem," the College President said, "is to require students to pay a larger share of the cost of their education, but Georgia Tech students are already paying a very large share."

Van Leer said this fact was illustrated in 1949-50 budget of $4,553,965.48, to which the State contributed only $795,053, or 17.5 per cent.

In his report prepared for presentation to the Regents Wednesday, he said the State should pay at least 30 percent of Tech's operating costs. He observed:

"No other state furnishes such a small percentage of the cost of operating its institutions of higher learning than Georgia."

"Efforts must be redoubled to induce Georgia to contribute a larger share."

Elimination of Known Hazards Aim of Fire Prevention Week

Atlanta will hear and see a lot about fire prevention this week.

Annual observance of Fire Prevention Week, co-sponsored by the Atlanta Fire Department and the Junior Chamber of Commerce, will be highlighted by educational programs in schools and before civic groups.

Jaycees will blanket the city with posters. Uniformed firemen will show films to school children, and radio spot announcements and T-V programs will stress fire prevention.

Asst. Fire Marshall J. F. Seagraves said the Atlanta Fire Department had sent out thousands of letters urging business firms and individuals to help eliminate fire hazards and practice other fire prevention methods.

Van Leer reported that Georgia Tech is "sadly inadequate" in so far as physical facilities are concerned. He said the present high enrollment contrasts sharply with the capacity for which campus buildings were erected.

The educator offered a list of 11 buildings which he said are "urgently needed."

"Some progress was evident in every division of the school, but this should not cause any relaxation of efforts," Van Leer concluded.

Negroes Not Paying For Schools—Harris

By M. L. ST. JOHN

Georgia Negroes, who pay only three percent of the State's taxes, couldn't operate their own schools for 10 days a year if the white people were to withdraw their support, Augusta Political Leader Roy Harris warns.

Weekend developments on Georgia's political front found Georgia Republicans increasing their battle against extending the County Unit System into the general election; announcement that Gov. Talmadge will dedicate a bridge at Milledgeville while members of the 1951 Georgia Legislature are inspecting State institutions there; and a continuation of Harris' warnings, in his Augusta Courier, the State might abolish its public school system if Negroes persist in abolishing segregation.

Asking why white people should spend millions for schools which will destroy segregation, Harris said:

"It's time for the Negroes to let the white people know in no uncertain terms what they propose to do. If they are willing to live in a state of segregation and attend segregated schools, then we ought to tax ourselves and build a school system."

"If they are not willing to live in a state of segregation and attend segregated schools, then the white people should and must make other plans and let the Negroes scout for themselves."

"For the Negroes' own best interest they ought to have sense enough to organize and let it be known the only thing they are asking is an equal opportunity."

The new issue of The Georgia Republican carries articles by State Chairman W. R. Tucker and National Committeeman Harry Sommers describing the County Unit System Constitutional Amendment Nov. 8 as the Party's "chief opponent."

They explained the Republican Party decided against running statewide or Congressional candidates this year in order to put their full strength against this amendment which would forever prevent the development of a two-party system in Georgia.

Sommers appealed to Republicans throughout the State to contribute funds to help campaign against this amendment. Tucker said the defeat of the proposed amendment will pave the way for the "much-needed two-party system in Georgia."

Young Republicans in convention in Macon Saturday launched a battle against this amendment.

Meanwhile, the Democrats, themselves, are sharply divided over the amendment in this one-party State. Baxter Jones, Jr., of Atlanta, heads a statewide committee with an organization claimed in 100 counties to fight the amendment. Gov. Talmadge is bringing out his big guns this week in a series of radio broadcasts favoring the amendment.

The entire membership of the General Assembly has been invited, along with Gov. Talmadge and State officials, to Milledgeville Thursday and Friday for a pre-session inspection of the State Hospital, the State Training School for Boys, and the Georgia State College for Women.

The Governor will dedicate the Harry Bone Bridge, between Milledgeville and the State Hospital, at 2:30 p. m. Friday.

2 Girls Shot in Ambush After Date; Boy Sought

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich., Oct. 8—(AP)—Police blockaded a lonely corner of the Upper Michigan wilderness Sunday in an effort to catch an 18-year-old youth whom two teen-aged girls accused of critically wounding them after they left a tryst at his family's hunting cabin.

Led by a police plane, posses of 80 State troopers, conservation officers and woodsmen stalked the dense forest for Donald Cole, identified by the young victims as their attacker.

Officers said Cole shot Pauline Parady, 14, and Myrna Benson, 12, late Saturday as they walked away from his cabin near the Lake Superior shore 35 miles from here.

Officers were unable to learn a motive for the shooting immediately.

The three had been alone in the cabin, police said. Cole apparently ambushed the girls, firing into their backs with a .22-caliber rifle.

Pauline and Myrna, who were visiting with Myrna's mother at a friend's cabin nearby, were walking out of the forest when they were fired upon.

Myrna's mother heard the girls' screams and ran to their aid. They were taken to a hospital here in critical condition.

Donald and the two girls lived in Sault Ste. Marie and were spending the week end at the hunting cabin, police said. The three knew each other at school.

Donald's mother, also spending the week end at the family's cabin, was visiting with Myrna's mother at the time of the shooting.

Election of officers and an address, "In Unity There is Strength," by Burke, are slated for a 2 p. m. business meeting. Lt. Gov. Griffin will be speaker at a 6:30 p. m. banquet marking the close of the one-day meeting. The banquet will be held in the Dinkler Room of the Ansley Hotel.

Reds Urge Strike

MANILA, Oct. 8—(AP)—Communist leaflets calling on Filipinos to strike against the government were found in Manila streets Sunday morning.

The police have feared the Communist-led Hukbalahaps will create widespread disturbances Tuesday, the anniversary of the founding of the Chinese Republic of Dr. Sun Yat-Sen.

ENTERS U. S., THEN HOSPITAL

French Dad Weeps As Baby Improves Here

By MARJORY SMITH

A French chef wept for joy here Sunday night at word that his 22-month-old daughter, who was put under an oxygen tent at Crawford Long Hospital one day after her entry into the United States, was better.

"Oul, our Muriel ees better!" sighed Jean Combete, of 867 Rosedale Rd., N. E. Combete and his wife brought petite, brown-eyed Muriel to the hospital on the family's arrival in Atlanta 10 days ago.

The child, according to the pediatrician treating her, has a serious heart condition and has taken a "deep cold" aboard the ship bringing the family to the States.

Emile Blanc, Atlanta restaurant owner who brought the Combetes here, had to serve as interpreter between parents and doctor.

"But the Combetes are learning

English quickly," Blanc declared. Atlanta physicians hope to get the French child in good enough physical condition to permit an operation which would improve her heart condition. Muriel, born in Montpellier in southern France, weighs only 13 pounds and has been ill most of her short life.

Physicians here have already obtained medical records from doctors in France, including X rays from Paris and Montpellier. Muriel, described by her Crawford Long nurses as "a beautiful little French child," was removed from her oxygen tent Sunday.

Two Killed, 7 Injured In Traffic Over Weekend

Two persons were killed in weekend auto traffic over Georgia and at least seven others were injured.

The Atlanta traffic injury toll Sunday was five. And another driver narrowly escaped injury when a southbound train rammed his car at the McDaniel Street, S. W., crossing of the Central of Georgia Railway tracks.

H. C. Smith, Sr., 58, of Rte. B, Griffin, pitched from the rear of a pickup truck and fell to his death on High Falls Road, three miles east of Griffin.

The second fatality, Joe Hyman Metters, 57, of Rte. 4, Baxley, was thrown from the front seat of his car three miles south of Alma, on U. S. Highway 1.

State Patrolmen said Metters was riding with Forrest Kinnon, also of Rte. 4, Baxley, who attempted to pass a car braked sharply, lost control of the vehicle and ran into a ditch. Kinnon was injured slightly.

One woman was injured and two others shaken up two miles north of Dalton Sunday in a three-way highway crash involving a truck and two automobiles.

Mrs. Robert Lee Grant was taken to a Dalton hospital with cuts and bruises as a result.

Injured in an auto-trolley collision at Fifth and Myrtle Streets, N. E., were David Monroe, 29, of 732 Bonaventure Ave., N. E., driver of the auto, and A. D. Cohen, 56, of 873 Parkway Dr., N. E., and Mrs. E. K. Ayo, 43, of 1134 Stillwood Dr., N. E., both passengers on the trolley.

Ptl. Jack Langley and H. E. West said Monroe's car struck the right front end of the trolley as the trolley passed through the intersection. The trolley was operated by Roy A. Patterson, 34, of 1489 Brooklyn St., N. W.

Charges of overrunning a stop sign, accident and speeding approximately 45 miles an hour were booked against Monroe.

A two-car smashup at Fair and Peters Streets caused slight injuries to Warren Phillips, 24, of 251 Ashby St., N. W., and Glenn Garner, 39, of 791 W. Marietta St., N. W.

Jim W. Hobbs, Negro, 34, of 904 West End Ave., narrowly missed possible serious injury when he leaped from his auto seconds before a southbound Central of Georgia train plowed into it at the McDaniel Street crossing.

Ptl. D. S. Harris and J. C. Hopkins said Hobbs' auto was trapped on the tracks by a line of automobiles waiting for a traffic light at McDaniel and Peters Streets. Aware he could not move his machine in time to avoid being struck by the moving train Hobbs jumped free. Force of the im-

POLICE
BLOTTER

By KEELER MCCARTNEY

A 22-year-old Atlanta motorist Sunday tried a new trick on police to avoid arrest, but wound up facing 21 counts of traffic violations. Ptl. J. G. Adams said he stopped the young man's car after a chase of several blocks and found that the driver had rolled up all his windows and locked the doors and refused to come out or let Adams enter. After slight persuasion, Adams got him out of the car and booked him on an assortment of charges, including speeding 70 miles an hour. The driver was identified as Ralph Crankshap, of 3230 Bankhead Hwy., N. W.

Suitcase Episode

A too-heavy suitcase got a 32-year-old Atlanta Negro in trouble Sunday night. Patrolmen who watched Clarence Jackson, Negro, of 410 Elm St., S. W., struggling across Boulevard and Gartrell St., S. E., with his burden investigated. They said the suitcase was filled with six one-gallon jugs of nontax-paid liquor. Jackson was booked on charges of disorderly conduct and transporting illicit whiskey.

Small Fires Quenched

City firemen Sunday night dashed to the residence of Otis Montgomery at 461 Felton Dr., N. E., where they found the Montgomery's Sunday dinner among 42 students who have received scholarships at Hampton Institute, Hampton, Va. The awards are based on qualifying examinations and the candidate's previous achievements and general promise.

Broken Arm Mystery

Police were mildly mystified Sunday night as to how a woman held in City jail received a broken arm. The victim, listed as Miss Ica Pettett, 28, of 462 Pulliam St., S. W., was taken from her cell to Grady Hospital for treatment Saturday night about an hour after her arrest.

According to Ptl. A. L. Posey and G. S. Robertson, Miss Pettett first told hospital authorities she "did not know" how she received her injury. Later she alternately blamed arresting officers and the person who fingerprinted her at the jail.

Police denied the woman's arm was broken during her arrest or fingerprinting. They pointed out Miss Pettett failed to complain to a grand jury committee which visited her in her cell a short time after the arrest. She was arrested Saturday night on drunk-disorderly charges.

NEW, MIRACLE
ELECTRONIC EAR
HIDES DEAFNESS

CHICAGO, (Special)—An amazing new electronic ear which hides deafness and transmits even whispers with startling clarity, has been revealed by a noted Chicago electronic scientist.

He disclosed that this miraculous new discovery has rendered old-style hearing aids obsolete almost overnight, and brings new hope to the 15 million persons in the United States who are hard of hearing.

He reported that this electronic ear enables the deaf to hear without any button showing in the ear and without dangling battery wires. To acquaint the hard of hearing readers of this paper with this new miracle electronic ear which hides deafness, full details are described in a fascinating booklet, "New Discoveries to Help the Deaf Hear." It will be sent free in a plain wrapper to anyone who requests it. Address: Electronic Research Director, 1450 West 19th Street, 634-D Belmont Building, Chicago 9, Ill. A penny postcard will do—Adv.

Two trucks . . . with different insignia . . . going to different places—but both on the same errand. They're both on their way to provide Georgia farms with electric service.

The Georgia Power Company supplies electricity to thousands of Georgia farmers direct. Many thousands more are served through REA cooperatives, to which we supply power at wholesale rates among the lowest in the nation. That's the basis for our relationship with Georgia's cooperatives—but our relationship goes much farther than that.

Day in and day out . . . year after year . . . Georgia Power employs and the employees and operators of REA cooperatives work together to bring dependable electric service to our rural areas. This spirit of cooperation had its beginning in the earliest days of the REA. Back in 1936 we took the position publicly that "where we ourselves can't build, we will help others to build." That is still our policy today as the job of bringing electricity to Georgia's farmers reaches its final stages.

We have helped REA cooperatives survey their service areas, plan their distribution systems and set up their rate schedules. We have helped them promote a wider use of electricity, and have assisted them frequently in making emergency line repairs. We have given up some rural lines which we intended to build in order to assure the success of cooperatives in neighboring areas. All these things we have done for REA cooperatives in the past, and we are prepared to do them again.

This spirit of cooperation—this working together—is proof of our determination to help bring Georgia's farmers the best electric service available anywhere!

Power For Every Need!

During the five years since the end of World War II, we have increased our generating capacity by 400,000 horse-power, or more than half. That much more is scheduled to be added within the next three years. With these vast new sources of electric power we are striving to meet the needs of Georgia's farms, homes, stores and industries for the critical days that lie ahead.

News of Georgians Serving in the Armed Forces

By RICHARD ARNOLD

Three former Fort Benning infantrymen on the Korean battlefield have found that North Korean Reds have made a change in the old saying, "A rolling stone gathers no moss."

Their version is: "A rolling grenade gathers no Americans."

That's the conclusion of Maj. Charles H. Hallden, a native of Lancaster, Wis.; Capt. Robert Walker, husband of Mrs. Thelma Curtis Walker, of Columbus; and Cpl. Virgil Brinson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Tyrus Brinson, of Soper-ton.

The former Fort Benningites were engaged in a heroic five-hour American attack at Hill 214, scene of a hand-to-hand combat, when 1,000 Communists atop the hill rolled grenades down the hillside in a futile attempt to stop the small American force.

Cpl. Brinson said he was the "happiest man in the world" when he watched the whirled Reds flee for safety in adjoining hills. Brinson fought off two North Koreans with his bayonet and pistol during one of the Communists' fanatical charges.

Patrols scouting the rubbled hilltop found 300 dead Reds, an equal number of wounded, and three jeeps of equipment.

Receives Citation

First Lt. Guy F. Halston, Jr., of 299 Colonial Homes Cir., N. E., was recently awarded the second

Oak Leaf Cluster to the Air Medal. Lt. Halston is an F-80 jet pilot in a Fifth Air Force Fighter-Bomber Group.

While participating in 10 operational flight missions over Korea, Lt. Halston escorted bombers and transport aircraft, and performed strafing and dive-bombing attacks from low altitudes.

And with the Navy in the Korean area are nine Georgians—seven of whom live in the Atlanta area. They are Perry A. Whitley, airman, USN, of 210 Connally Dr.; Jerry E. Myrick, fireman, USN, of 81 Rawson St., S. W.; Billy E. Campbell, airman, USN, of 440 Grant St., S. E.; James T. Sibley, seaman, USN, of 2831 Tee Rd.; Lt. (jg) Pierce Y. Promotion

Six other Atlanta area men are serving with the Army, Air Force, and Marines.

Sgt. William C. Lanier, of 1115 Gordon St., S. W., was recently promoted to Sergeant First Class. He is attached to the 711th Airborne Quartermaster Maintenance Company at Fort Campbell, Ky.

John Marion Skinner, Jr., of 559 Kelly St., S. E., who was recently awarded the American Spirit Honor Medal, has completed recruit training at Parris Island, S. C., and will report to Camp Lejeune, N. C., where he will train as an electrician.

Pvt. Charles W. Brown, of 146 Forest Ave., S. E., is attending an aviation specialist course in the Technical Training Center, Chantilly Air Force Base, Ill.

Pvt. David L. Arnold, of 8 Maury St., S. E., has been assigned to the Fourth Fighter-Interceptor Wing at the Castle County Airport, Wilmington, Del. . . . Pvt. Robert S. Pickett, of 125 Georgia Ave., S. W., is training as an Air Force technician at the USAF Technical School at Warren Air Force Base, Wyo. . . . Col. Walter M. Bartlett, of 125 Michigan Ave., Decatur, a member of the Army Medical Corps Reserve, is now on a short tour of duty in the Third Army Section, Fort McPherson.

Commands WACs

Capt. Martha S. Tolbert, of 1006 Blackmon Dr., Decatur, — first WAC Reservist to answer voluntary recall from Georgia — has been named Commanding Officer of the newly organized WAC Detachment at Fort Jackson, S. C.

Prior to entering the service and between active tours of duty, Capt. Tolbert was employed by the Lipscomb-Ellis Company in Atlanta as a bookkeeper and insurance accountant. She attended Druid Hills High and Commercial High Schools here.

And Maj. Carlisle C. Taylor, son of P. C. Taylor, of 25 Demorest Ave., has been assigned as staff judge advocate to the Garmisch Military Post in Southern Bavaria. A graduate of Fulton High School, he attended Emory University and the University of Georgia, later receiving his law degree. He practiced law in Atlanta before being called to active Army duty in 1941.

Capt. Paul Roberts, of 513 Ashby St., S. W., commanding officer of the 209th M. P. Company in Kobe, Japan, has been awarded a Third Army Certificate of Achievement. The certificate was bestowed on him in behalf of Lt. Gen. Alvin C. Gillem for Capt. Roberts' service as Asst. Provost Marshal at Fort McPherson.

Col. Raymond W. Burkett, son of Mrs. W. V. Burkett, of 1071 Highland Ave., N. E., has been promoted to the rank of Lieutenant Colonel in the Army ordnance department. Colonel Burkett is field maintenance officer at European Command Headquarters in Heidelberg, Germany.

BISHER

It's Not Football,
It's a Frame of Mind

College football is playing into the hands of the scholars. Five years more of this trend struck up on the backside of the Twentieth Century and the sport will be transferred from the jurisdiction of the department of athletics to the department of psychology. Coaches will not make as much as college presidents. Scrimmages will be held between white mice. Player reactions will be tested with the rubber hammer and quarterbacks will be developed in the laboratory.

Gone is the day when a man can sit down, measure weight, height, speed and past performance and arrive at what seems to be a logical conclusion on who should lower the boom on whom on a Saturday afternoon. To pick a winner now, one must determine 2,000 miles away on Tuesday what the mental attitude of Flagstaff Teachers will be on Saturday. Even Coach Aardvark of Flagstaff himself doesn't know.

But it's that kind of guessing game. You sit around and hum and haw and doodle and wonder who should be "up," as they say, this week after being "down" last week, and is it possible for the coach to accomplish the Herculean psychological success. Who whipped whom doesn't mean a thing any more.

For instance, to get the proper perspective on what's going on over at Athens this year, one must back up a few and focus on East Lansing, Mich., and College Park, Md., at the same time. Georgia started the season by ducking Maryland's hard right to the jaw. Maryland bounced off the duck and before the referee could count one, leveled Navy and Michigan State and started a riot in the houses of rating.

Georgia, meanwhile, has accomplished nothing more than a couple of dead heats. Against weak St. Mary's, the Bulldogs played as if canasta were their game. Against strong and hardy North Carolina, they played like men.

Bulldogs 134, Michigan 0

Psychology does it, professor. St. Mary's threw a flying psychological wedge at the Crackers, who threw same at North Carolina. Basically, Georgia has yet to prove itself a good team, great in spots, but not good all over. Yet, by the figures of our men around the office, Georgia is 132 points better than Michigan, 125 points better than Michigan State, and so is St. Mary's.

When the game was done, the Tar Heels explained to our Gene Asher that Georgia hit harder than Notre Dame, that Billy Nixon was one of the finest backs they have faced, and Carl Snively pronounced the Bulldogs the finest team Wally Butts has fielded since 1946. Butts might feel the same, if the quarterback situation had turned up as he thought it might a Spring ago.

"All I got to say," Butts said, "is that they surely seem to have uncommon respect for Georgia up in North Carolina. I thought we should have won, but then I thought they could have won, too. If our passing had been accurate, and if our signal-callers had been as smart at the end of our drives as they were during the drives, we would have won."

Carolina could find the same fault at a crucial moment. When they were striking from the Georgia five in the fourth quarter, the Tar Heel quarterback called a sweep and played into the hands of Georgia's strongest end, Mike Merola. The back was broken.

But when it comes to quarterbacks and quarterbacking, Robert Dodd can sing the bluest blues of them all. The gentleman from Georgia Tech has now reached six deep into his, shall we say, strength at the position.

It figures this way: Darrell Crawford was No. 1 at the start. He went down with a shoulder separation in the South Carolina game. Joe Salome was No. 2. He quit, came back and went down on precisely the same play, a sweeping pass, against Florida. Fred Davis never came back to school. Bob Robinson, the greatest backhand passer of the era, can't throw an overhand strike. Bubba Sykes had never run a college team in his life until Saturday.

Now Dodd has called up Charley Jordan from the red shirts. He's another in a long line of Jordans at Tech, but no relation to any ahead of him, comes from Valdosta and played in Billy Grant's high school backfield.

Nobody Knows de Trubble I've Seen . . .

"Nobody but the coaches out here knows just how bad it's going to be the rest of the way," Dodd says. "I guess we'll have to cancel that sweeping pass play, or we'll be worse off yet."

It's more amazing, yet, that Tech should have won a conference game with Sykes steering. In the brochure you'll find him listed as a halfback, not a quarterback, and two weeks ago he was employed at that position on the Junior varsity.

Unaccustomed as he was to such responsibility, he was human to the point of error. His inexperience is reflected in the call that could have broken down the machine in the last quarter. Tech was a touchdown behind and inches away from a first down around Florida's five. Sykes called a second-down sweep that lost yards when the logical call was a sneak. Tech came on and scored and it was a work of Sykes' courage. The ball hadn't thrown him, for it was he who toted the ball in on the sneak play he hadn't called in the first clutch.

Butts and Dodd can fret over quarterbacks, but the man with the championship fret is Earl Brown down the placard at Auburn. Three times out, three defeats and two by minor league Wofford and Southeastern Louisiana has left the War Eagle shivering in its tail feathers.

"It's just a lack of confidence," Earl said Sunday. "It's the same bunch of coaches and almost the same bunch of players, excepting Travis Tidwell and three others, who did a good job last year. They lost to Wofford in that first game and that took the wind out of their sails, and they haven't got over it."

"I think they're going to snap out of it. Right now, I've just got to lick that 'poor of Auburn' attitude."

We've circled the bases around to psychology again. You're next, professor.

SPORTS TRAIL

Jim Konstanty Picked
As Hero of Series

By WHITNEY MARTIN

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—The 1950 "Fall Classic," to coin a phrase, failed to produce the heart-stopping thrills that such close games might be expected to produce. The only tickers that really were strained belonged to reporters climbing to the crow's nest at Shibe Park, place with more ghosts than a haunted house. All the Phil players seemed to be writing by-line articles between innings. Phillies fans had little to cheer about, at that. The first game, particularly, was played in a soundproof park. As one observer remarked while listening to his hair grow, "the Phillies fans waited 35 years to remain quiet."

A little break here, a little break there, might have had a tremendous effect on the outcome, but there always was the feeling that sometime, somehow, the Yankees would win. They just have too many ways to beat you. Hard to find any particular heads to find in the horns or halo. Granny Hamner's error helped lose the third game, but he batted in sensational fashion throughout the series, and made spectacular fielding plays. Dick Sisler's streakout ending two games were glaring, but if you are going to make goats out of hitting failures you're going to have to enlarge the barn. There were a lot of them.

Joe DiMaggio's 10th inning home run to win the second game might put him in the running for the hero role, but Gerry Coleman was no Poppy Pete. He hit well throughout the play, and won the third game with a rousing blow in the ninth inning. And where was Joe Page? The Yankee bullpen idol of 1949 far as we know he never threw a warmup pitch. Our personal choice for hero honors is a pitcher who didn't win a game—Jim Konstanty. The big, powerful guy with the nerves of a stepladder was in three games, and you can count him had pitched on the fingers of one hand. A really solid citizen. Eddie Sawyer said Eddie Waitkus' miff of a double play ball in the final game was only his third miff of the year. He didn't get enough of an error on it, however. Oddly failures of the game shaking hands with everybody from bibles to bellhops.

If there were a lot of vacant seats at the first game it wasn't Casey Stengel's fault. The Yankee was the idle Yankee of 1950. So kee pilot, who likes people, was around a crowded hotel lobby the morning of the game shaking hands with everybody from bibles to bellhops.

Vandy Stuns SEC Kinfolks
In Week-end 'Bama RazingBy STERLING SLAPPEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

Kentucky on the high roost of the Southeastern Conference is no surprise but Vanderbilt in second place is.

Vandy's spot in the standings is a shocker, and the Commodores can further confuse an already jumbled picture by whipping Mississippi next Saturday. If they succeed they will be on top, exactly eight notches higher than all except Vandy booster ever thought they would be.

Nationally Purdue's victory over Notre Dame was the upset of last week, but down in the SEC neck of the football woods that was no more shocking than Vandy over Alabama, 27-22.

Instead of losing by a couple of touchdowns, the Commodores ran up a 27-13 lead and who despite nine Alabama—last period points. The dope-befuddling victory sent Bill Edwards' peaceful looking riot squad into the unchallenged runner-up spot.

Young Bill Wade tossed his sixth, seventh and eighth touchdowns in conference games. Two were caught by Bucky Curtis to make the Wade-Curtis route the best paved touchdown highway in Dixie.

The victory proved that a team needs at least a season to learn a new formation. Edwards suffered last season in teaching the Cleveland Brown style of "T" but he isn't suffering any longer.

Mississippi, the team Vandy can climb over for first place this week, had a pleasant afternoon against Boston College, winning a sophomore training contest, 54-0. The Rebel-Commodore game will be in Nashville.

If Vandy wins, Kentucky will give up first place by default. The Wildcats, who smothered Dayton, 40-0, play out-of-league Cincinnati Saturday night in Lexington. Notre Dame may now be one of the beaten herd but few coaches envy Henry Frka of Tulane.

The doubles title will be decided next Sunday afternoon.

Salome Joins Tech's
Growing Injured ListLeaky Pass Defense, Weakness in Middle
Of Line Apparent Even in First Victory

By EDWIN POPE

The flashing final break that rode with Georgia Tech for a gripping 16-13 victory over Florida turned around a few hours later and lashed The Wreck in its sorest spot.

Quarterback Joe Salome joined in, 163 to 122, but it was using seasoned secondary and found at Darrell Crawford on Trainer Buck Andel's preferred patients list for this week's game at Louisiana State. That left distraught Coach Bobby Dodd with only Lewis (Bubba) Sykes in the slot. Sykes started the year on the B team.

There is the slightest chance that Darrell may be back soon. Salome has a strained throwing arm. Crawford a bum shoulder. Dodd groaned of his lack of passers, guards and pass defense but a fan cracked that Tech needs a Pasteur more.

Clutch Kid Red Patton's field goal in the last seven seconds won for Georgia Tech. But it failed to revive the crippled dream of Tech men for a successful season. The consensus is that the Jackets just do not own the personnel to play on even terms with the better Southeastern and Southern teams.

They passed for equal yardage, 120, against a team regarded as season's quietest as the league's worst. They completed only five of 13 while the magnificent Sullivan hit on nine of 21 and would have had a far better record had not his receivers been afflicted with acute dropsy. Tech led rushing, 163 to 122, but it was using seasoned secondary and found at Darrell Crawford on Trainer Buck Andel's preferred patients list for this week's game at Louisiana State. That left distraught Coach Bobby Dodd with only Lewis (Bubba) Sykes in the slot. Sykes started the year on the B team.

However, a general lack of speed and alertness in the Jacket secondary hurt plenty.

LSU did not have a strong passing attack at last look, but Norm Stephens and Lee Hedges on a hot night can make a team like Tech look bad. And Dodd fully realizes that in Hedges, Billy Baggett, Jimmy Barton and Leroy Labat, Coach Gus Tinsley has ground dynamite to blow that Tech middle clean on down to Lake Pontchartrain.

Linebacking is something else. Backfield Chief Ray Ellis thought that Sophomore George Morris and Senior Capt. Boss-sons turned in their premier chores of the year.

"Our quarterbacking was not too bad, considering that we were playing two boys who did not.

Sox May Name Richards Pilot Tuesday

CHICAGO, Oct. 8.—(AP)—The Chicago White Sox Tuesday are expected to name their 1951 pilot, rumored to be Paul Richards, current manager of Seattle in the Pacific Coast League.

The incumbent Sox manager, John (Red) Corriden, got the job last May when Jack Onslow was fired. The White Sox this season finished sixth, the same as last year under Onslow.

Neither club Vice President Charles Comiskey nor Gen. Mgr. Frank Lane was available for comment Sunday night, but the Sox board of directors is tabber to meet Tuesday when next season's field boss probably will be named.

The Sox already have had permission of the Seattle club to deal with Richards. The only hitch reportedly is that Richards has demanded a two-year Sox contract.

The Pale Hose front office apparently is reluctant to grant a two-year pact, recalling its experience with Onslow. When Onslow was fired last May, he was under a two-year contract and the club had to pay it out. Another reason for the Sox seeking to issue only a one-year contract is that the club's attendance slumped this season.

Since Jimmy Dykes, a 13-year Sox managerial standby, was ditched in 1946, the Sox have had three pilots—Ted Lyons, who lasted until 1949; Onslow and Corriden.

Richards has been in and out of the Sox managerial picture for more than a year. He conferred with Lane on the West Coast two months ago and the deal was believed to have been set at that time, barring a few details.

ROUGH ROAD AHEAD

Tigers Could Close Year Without Win

By JACK JACKSON

Not since 1927 has an Auburn football team played a full schedule without a victory. But barring unforeseen developments, the current crew down at The Plains seems destined to do just that.

Saturday's loss to Southeastern Louisiana—a team which has not been too successful in its own small college league—was the crushing blow to an already battered team. And, to make it worse, you got the idea that the better team plainly won the ball game.

It is a long road ahead. Florida is the next opponent and the Gators are followed by Georgia Tech, Tulane, Mississippi State, Georgia, Clemson and Alabama. Little hope for victory is found in that list.

Southeastern, already beaten by Louisiana College and Southwest Louisiana, carried the battle to Auburn most of the way. The most serious Tiger threat came after Ridley Boudreaux fumbled and Dave Ridgeway recovered at the Lions' 20. But the best Auburn could do was move the ball to the 18 where it went over four plays later.

Actually, the margin would have been greater had it not been for a break and an unusual bit of strategy on the part of Southeastern. Late in the first period, the Lions started a drive which worked its way to the Auburn four with a first down early in the second period. Manuel Dugas picked up three yards on the first try and the score seemed inevitable. But after Dugas was stopped cold, two fumbles, the first recovered by Southeastern and the second by Auburn's Lee Hayley, killed the threat.

Then, in the third period, the

Saddler and Maxim Face Fight Action

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—(AP)—Featherweight champion Sandy Saddler and Light heavyweight king Joey Maxim, a pair of titleholders who like to keep busy, appear in non-title bouts this week.

Saddler, sharp-punching New York Negro, steps out against Harry La Sane, of Houston, in a ten-rounder at St. Louis Thursday night.

Maxim faces heavyweight Bill Peterson, of Chicago, in ten at Salt Lake City Tuesday night.

Lightweight contender Paddy De Marco, of New York, clashes with Joey Scarloti, fellow New Yorker, in the main ten at New York's St. Nicholas Arena Wednesday night. CBS will broadcast and televise this one.

The Friday night radio-TV show also will come from St. Nick's. Nick Barone, light heavy contender, takes on 20-year-old Jimmy Beau, of Norwalk, Conn., in a ten. The fight will be aired by ABC and videoed by NBC.

A good light heavy ten at Seattle Tuesday matches Harry Kid Matthews, of Seattle, and Grant Butcher, of Los Angeles.

Says Snavelly: Georgia Best Since Sugar Bowl

By FURMAN FISHER

ATHENS, Oct. 8.—"This," said Carl Snavelly as he sat down to play the piano in the Holman Hotel dining room, "is the greatest Georgia team we have played since our Sugar Bowl game with them."

Mr. Snavelly is not employed to play the piano in the Athens hotel. He still coaches the football team at University of North Carolina, whose Tar Heel team had just a few hours before been played to a 0-0 tie by the 1950 Bulldogs.

"The difference," said the veteran of the single wing school, "is this: They have much more speed in the backfield. And, we were mighty

New Win Streak Goal Of Notre Dame's Irish

By JOHN JAMESON

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Oct. 8.—(AP)—Out of the gloom that hung over the Notre Dame campus came the promise that the Irish will come back.

"We'll start another string of victories," Edward W. (Moose) Krause, Notre Dame director of athletics, said Sunday.

"It was bound to come," Krause observed about the 14-28 loss to Purdue. "We can't win them all." Krause said that a lot of Notre Dame fans had told him that they were glad that the pressure was off, but neither Krause nor Frank Leahy, Notre Dame coach, would back up the sentiment.

Would the fact that Notre Dame has been beaten make it easier to schedule games? The Irish had been having some trouble along that line in recent years as their invincibility mounted.

Krause's answer to that was that Notre Dame's schedule worries had already been settled.

"We're in good shape now and have some fine teams scheduled," he pointed out.

However, now that it has been proved that Notre Dame can be beaten, there may be a lot of other teams looking for games with us," he commented.

"I'll bet that Michigan and Northwestern, for instance, wished Saturday that it was their team out there on the field beating us," Krause observed.

"Our relationships with Purdue have been the finest; they've been our friends all the way," he said. "Just the other night, Red (Guy) Mackey, Purdue athletic director, said 'We'll always play Notre Dame; if we don't play them, we can't beat them and the day is coming when we will beat them.'"

"And how right he was," Purdue, although it has taken steady beatings in recent years, has scheduled the South Bend team all through its long winning streak.

The director gave highest praise to the student body.

"It was wonderful to see them swarm around the team and carry the men on their shoulders," said Krause.

"One Purdue man watching this said, 'how can you ever beat a team backed by a student body with that kind of spirit.'"

Leahy said he had no plans yet for what to do to prepare the team for the rest of the season.

Andy Page, Jack Pierce's able assistant at Lucky Strike Alleys and a member of the Holman Rolls team in the City Duckpin League, got away to a fast start by rolling a 433 and a high game of 177. This is tops for the league season thus far.

Andy's team is tied for third place behind Hotel Roxy and Betsy Ross. The Roxy quintet has dropped only one game out of 15. Carl Tidwell is the high average man with 129.

In the Gate City loop, Lewis Quinn posted a 150 game last week but Walter Lawson's 162 is still tops in this department. Lawson's 421 leads Quinn by one pin for high individual set. Gay's Score for 176 is the leading team in the Gate City loop with 12 won and only three setbacks.

In the Ladies Commercial, Scarratt's Garage holds top spot in the standings with 9 and 3. Pearl Tyre registered a high game of 154 last week to lead the pack, while Estelle Warrington's 386 set heads the loop's best. Allie Allen, of Tru-Ade, is top individual performer in the Ladies City League with a high game of 149. Her 118 is top average. Warrington's 386 set is high in this league also.

Loyola Upsets Gaels by 48-0

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 8.—(AP)—St. Mary's Gaels, who pulled a major surprise by holding Georgia to a 7-7 tie 10 days ago, were soundly thrashed by Loyola University Sunday, 48-0. It was the first Loyola win over the Gaels in 11 tries.

Loyola went into the game before an estimated 17,000 fans in Gilmore Stadium boasting of its best team in many years. The Lions quickly made good the boast, scoring the first time they got the ball and racking up three more touchdowns in the second quarter to hold a 27-0 lead at half time.

Loyola stopped St. Mary's feared fullback, John Henry Johnson, and its quarterback star, Don Klosterman, flanked by a set of good backs, dominated the game from start to finish.

Woodlee, Wadiak Lauded In Gamecocks' Victory

By GENE ASHER

GREENVILLE, S. C.—Oct. 8.—It was a great game between two South Carolina schools here Friday night, but it was a Georgian from Chickamauga who drew high praise from Coach Rex Enright after his Gamecocks defeated Furman, 21-6.

Junior Tommy Woodlee, a former Georgia prep star, performed beyond expectation. "Woodlee really came through," commented Enright.

All-Stars Trip Ordinance At Monroe

MONROE, Oct. 8.—Behind the vicious blocking of All-American Reid Moseley, Gene Chandler, Fred Mullis and Wilbur "Brute" Force, Coach Buddy Asher paced his Georgia All-Stars to a 19-0 victory over the Atlanta Ordinance Depot here Sunday.

Asher, highest player on his squad at 150 pounds, ran 19 yards for the opening score, passed 15 yards to Moseley for another tally and converted one extra point before a capacity crowd.

Frederick Schwartz, 210-pound Army fullback, ran well for the losers but his mates were unable to dent the All-Star line, led by Athens' Carter Langford, Jesse Duckworth and Red Henderson. Asher passed 19 yards to Chandler in the end zone for the first All-Star touchdown. Asher converted and it was 7-0 two minutes before the end of the period.

It was an even game in the second quarter and early in the third period the Army made its only threat, Schwartz, plucking to Jerry Freeman and Louis Cambra, led a 45-yard march before Chandler intercepted a Schwartz pass on the goal and returned to his 35.

On the first play of the fourth period, Asher passed to Moseley at the five, and Reid scored. With less than four minutes remaining, Asher hurled four consecutive passes to Chandler before Nelson Brightwell cut off for 19 yards and the final touchdown.

Gaillard Captures D. H. Club Title

Gene Gaillard, who won the Druid Hills Golf Club championship in 1947 and '48, came back to snag the '50 title by whipping Max Smith, 6 and 5, in the 36-hole finals.

Gaillard held a commanding 5-up lead at the end of the first eighteen. Dan McDowell, Druid Hills tournament chairman, said trophies for both the men's and women's tournaments would be presented at a dinner dance Oct. 26.

Wally Butts	Georgia	1	4	3	24
Carl Snavelly	UNC	4	16	7	43
Proctor	Georgia	1	4	1	4

Wally Butts, who had seen his quarterback barely missing their targets on tremendous touchdowns heaves all the afternoon, was singing the blues without accompaniment.

"I don't see why we shouldn't have won the game," he said. A Carolina line played a fine game, but our quarterbacking was out of order, and we practically played without a right halfback.

"If we could have got an off-springing break, it might have been different. That long pass play that the Southern Cat interference officials allowed nearly cost us the game. It took Carolina out of a hole when they would have had to kick from their own end zone."

This came late in the second period. Carolina on its own 10 on second down, Billy Hayes, the ace of the Tar Heels, threw a mighty heave to End C. C. White, who made contact with the ball on UNC's 40, walked the sideline tightrope and juggled the ball out of bounds on the Georgia 43. The officials ruled he had control of the ball and allowed it as a completion.

In the end, though, it seemed that both Snavelly and Butts were rather pleased to escape with a tie. The Bulldogs bounced back remarkably from their abysmal display against St. Mary's. The Tar Heels appeared keen for a team that had just come away from a brawl with Notre Dame the week before.

It was no close-fisted scoreless deadlock. Both coaches threw the works at each other and found the other fending off gracefully. It was a tie even to the depth of penetration. Each drove to the other's five-yard line, UNC near the end of the game and Georgia just before intermission.

Georgia drew bright defensive end play from Capt. Mike Merola, whose interception set up the situation for the Bulldogs' drive to the five and Fred McManus, who redeemed himself for his St. Mary's play. Their floating defense cut the effectiveness of Carolina's customarily dangerous short pass game.

Georgia still has to mark its course. This tie with Carolina was a feat of sorts, but the Bulldogs must handle tough Mississippi State Saturday to convince their people they're back to stay.

Steel Hears Wage Plea Of Million

Unions Seeking 'Healthy' Boost

Special to The New York Times and The Atlanta Constitution
PITTSBURGH, Oct. 8 — The United Steelworkers of America, CIO, headed by Philip Murray, will begin Monday its efforts to win a "very healthy and substantial" wage increase for its 1,000,000 members.

Union officials are frankly skeptical, however, that any pattern will emerge from the wage United Steelworkers of America, talks until the union holds meetings with the United States Steel Corporation, traditional pace-setter for the industry. No date has yet been set for the first session with "Big Steel."

The Bethlehem Steel Company, which led the industry in signing a pension agreement with the union after a month-long strike last year, is also on the indefinite list.

Most of the smaller steel companies, including Republic, Jones & Laughlin and Inland, are scheduled to sit down with union committees Monday. It was believed unlikely that Murray would take a personal hand in any of these meetings.

The companies have indicated considerable reluctance to go along with the union in its suggestion that higher wages be made effective before Jan. 1, the date specified in the existing contract.

The general attitude of the companies is that any departure from the contract terms might set a "dangerous precedent."

Despite this belief, the companies have informed Murray that they are prepared to listen to the union's arguments. The union contends that higher living costs since the Korean War and the possibility that many skilled workers may leave the steel industry for better-paid jobs in other industries make an early wage rise desirable. It has promised, however, that there will be no strike before Jan. 1.

The steel industry usually plays a major role in shaping national wage patterns. However, this year other industries have moved ahead of it by granting voluntary wage increases averaging 8 to 10 cents an hour to their workers.

The union has not announced its specific goals in steel, but it is expected that its initial demand will be for a rise of at least 25 cents over the present basic wage of $1.68 an hour. The union also is seeking improved holiday, overtime and pension provisions.

The industry is expected to counter with an increase limited to the actual rise in the cost of living since July, 1948, when the last pay adjustment became effective. This would put the maximum increase at 5 or 6 cents an hour, according to industry sources.

Steel executives contend that any additional pay rises would have to be reflected in increased steel prices. The union maintains that steel profits are large enough to permit higher pay without higher prices.

Four Women Await Duty On White County Jury

White County Superior Court will set a precedent in Georgia legal history Monday when the names of four women are read from the jury list.

If even one of the women is not challenged and serves, the Cleveland court will make history.

Court attaches reported Sunday there had been no revision of the jury list for this week's docket, which includes several important cases.

Although a 1945 State Constitution permits the Legislature to require women to serve on juries, the General Assembly never has passed an enabling act.

A flurry of controversy followed disclosure last week that the four women, all property-owners, were on the jury list. Atty. Gen. Eugene Cook stated women may serve on Georgia juries only if neither side challenges their eligibility.

Cook added women "are not eligible to serve," but said if neither plaintiff or defendant challenged and a woman juror served, the case could not be appealed on grounds she was not a legal juror.

The Georgia League of Women Voters and other persons interested in efforts to pass legislation to make women eligible jurors in State courts will be watching White County court developments.

A 1949 bill to that effect failed to receive a constitutional majority in the Georgia Legislature. Vote was 91 to 81. All representatives from Fulton, DeKalb and Cobb Counties favored the bill on a roll call vote.

The League is pushing renewed effort to pass such legislation next January.

Owner Killed As Fire Razes $25,000 Home

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 8.—(AP)—John P. Bell, 60, President of a Nashville shoe store, burned to death and a fireman was injured Sunday in a $25,000 blaze which destroyed Bell's suburban home.

Ed Savely, Woodmont fire chief, said Bell was pinned to the floor by a fallen roof partition.

Bob Griggs, 25, fireman, suffered severe lacerations while fighting the fire.

Dist. Atty. Gen. J. Carlton Loser said he will be no formal investigation.

Origin of the fire is unknown. Bell was alone in the house at the time.

Born at Dadeville, Ala., he was a graduate of Howard College, Birmingham. He was awarded the Croix de Guerre in World War I, in which he served in France as an infantry captain.

His wife died a month ago. Survivors include three daughters, two brothers, three sisters and a granddaughter.

Jewish Appeal Meeting Sunday
Atlanta and 40 other Georgia cities and towns will be represented at the Alabama-Western Georgia-Mississippi regional conference of the United Jewish Appeal in Birmingham Sunday.

Elliott Roosevelt, son of the late President, will be principal speaker. Major conference objective is raising funds to finance immigrations of European Jews to Israel.

Agents Check Polish Liner

Special to The New York Times and The Atlanta Constitution

NEW YORK, Oct. 8 — Despite the recent protest by the Polish Government that such action was discriminatory, the liner, Batory, was again subjected to a thorough security check on her arrival here Sunday from Gdynia, Copenhagen and Southampton.

Herman Lipsky, deputy collector of customs in charge of the Enforcement Division, said he boarded the ship shortly after 7 a. m. in Gravesend Bay with 50 of his men. As the ship lay anchored, he continued, "we made the most complete search yet made of the vessel and employed special instruments not used in previous searches." He declined to disclose the nature of the instruments.

After combing the vessel from "stem to stern" for five hours, Lipsky permitted the ship to continue to her berth at Pier 88, North River. He later announced that nothing of a suspicious nature had been found.

VFW Fears UN Flag Would Pale 'Glory'

School Plan Misunderstood, Agriculture Dept. Says

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—(AP)—The Veterans of Foreign Wars Sunday accused the Agriculture Department of "an apparent effort to flood the country with United Nations flags" to take the place of Old Glory over the nation's schools.

A spokesman for the Agriculture Department, who asked that his name not be used, retorted: "It is grossly false to say that the UN flags would supercede the American flag. The proposal is to display UN flags parallel to the American flag, just as it is displayed over Gen. MacArthur's headquarters."

Charles C. Ralls, the VFW National Commander, who made the accusation, also said he had been informed the program was under direction of a former Agriculture Department adviser to Russia.

The Agriculture Department spokesman said facts will show Ralls' "charges and unfair insinuations to be sheer nonsense." This official also said:

"As to the alleged former Russian adviser, the Commander does not believe his own story, or he would have named the man."

Ralls protested what he said was a program by the Agriculture Extension Service to supply UN flag pattern kits to 4-H and women's farm clubs and urging members to become "modern Betsy Rosses" by making such flags at home.

"These flags, I am told, are to fly over the nation's schools," Ralls said.

"Could there be some significance in this effort to 'sell' the United Nations flag as a symbol to supercede the American flag?" he asked.

The VFW strongly endorses the United Nations, Ralls said, but added that he was disturbed that any attempt should be made to have the UN banner supplant the national flag of this or any other nation.

"It is high time," he said, "that loyal Americans speak out against these attempts to steer us away from the traditions of our forefathers."

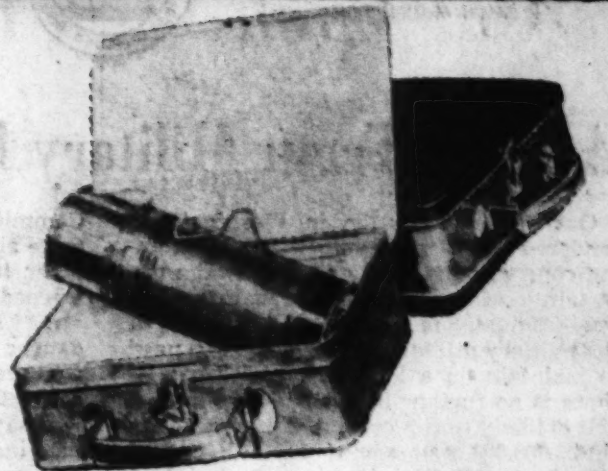

The Agriculture Department spokesman declared: "It is regrettable that Commander Ralls did not check his story even casually before releasing his damaging statement. The Department of Agriculture undertook the UN flag program at the request of the Agriculture Committee of the United Nations Anniversary Committee, which is backed by some 80 organizations, including the Veterans of Foreign Wars, as well as the American Legion, the American Bankers' Association and the National Association of Manufacturers."

"The Agriculture Committee," the Department spokesman added, "is composed of the four great farm organizations. About three-fourths of the State Governors are co-operating by official proclamation."

The idea of a "Betsy Ross" campaign to fly handmade United Nations flags in every city and town in the United States was first announced on Aug. 12.

The plan was credited to Albert E. Johnson, director of public relations for the National Grange, and was intended, the Grange said, to provide "a symbol of UN action in the Korean conflict."

"You never miss the water till the well runs dry..."

Like the water we drink, the availability of adequate railroad service is often "taken for granted" in normal times.

This is a high tribute to the railroads. But unfortunately, it is also too often taken for granted that railroads can always be strong and ready for any job, on a moment's notice... despite strength-sapping factors over which they have little or no control. Subsidized competition. Inadequate earnings. Hamstringing regulation. And forced continuation of services no longer needed or used.

Today, America can no longer afford the luxury of taking its railroads for granted. For more than the future of the industry is at stake. The railroads are our country's "transportation backbone." In the public interest, railroads should have equal opportunity with other carriers. Given that, they will always be ready to play their vital role in helping to shape the strength and security of America.

A Long-Term Military Program

Out of the confusion in Washington—rendered even more confused by the coming congressional elections and by the uncertainty of what will happen after Korea—gradually is emerging an estimate of the military machine this country will need to maintain on a long-time basis, even if there is no further immediate conflict.

It is likely to run considerably more than the 3,000,000-man armed force President Truman mentioned in his last radio address.

The Associated Press reports that the Joint Chiefs of Staff are considering the following:

1. An Army of 1,500,000.
2. An Air Force stepped up from a projected 69 groups by December, 1953, to between 95 and 110 groups.
3. A Navy in 1952 of 855,000 men and 941 ships, plus a long-range building program including a new flush-deck carrier.
4. A Marine Corps of 326,000 men, including four combat divisions and two aviation wings of 24 squadrons.

The rearmament program is largely the work of Rep. Carl Vinson, of Georgia, Chairman of the House Armed Services Committee. Rep. Vinson probably knows more about overall defense needs than any other individual. Long before Korea he warned repeatedly that the sinews of our armed strength were being cut beyond the danger point.

There will be those who, if the Korean conflict comes to a satisfactory conclusion, will say such a program is too expensive. And indeed it will be expensive. There will be more taxes and fewer civilian goods.

But we were shown by Korea the terrible chance we took in allowing the greatest military machine ever built to deteriorate after World War II in the name of "economy."

The democratic countries cannot choose the time or the place for the next armed test. That will be Russia's decision. It is up to us to be ready. We are succeeding in Korea largely because Russia had no idea we would intervene. She will not be taken by surprise next time.

Rep. Vinson and the Joint Chiefs want to make sure there are no more debates like that which met our initial efforts in Korea. We must be prepared for our aggression at any time, and be ready to go on full war footing on minimum notice.

Georgia Livestock Sales Keep Ahead

In the first seven months of this year Georgia farmers sold more than $90,000,000 worth of livestock.

That was more than half the total farm income of the State for the period.

Georgia was one of nine states in the nation—and the only one in the South—showing an increase in livestock sales over the same seven months of last year. The other states were Iowa, Missouri, North Dakota, Montana, Idaho, Wyoming, New Mexico and Arizona.

In the past few years farmers in this State have gone in for livestock raising in a serious way. The development of year-around pastures gives Georgia a considerable advantage over the traditional cattle states.

But the war-born decision of the Department of Agriculture to eliminate acreage restrictions on cotton for next year is going to provide a test.

Will Georgia farmers take the sensible view and continue to expand livestock raising, or will they succumb to the promise of unlimited cotton production and a 41-cent price and take a long step backward to the one-crop system that in the long run may again bring poverty?

The Defects

Begin To Show Up

The anti-Communist bill which Congress passed over Mr. Truman's veto promises to become more of a problem to the governmental agencies charged with its enforcement than to the Communists themselves.

When the bill was passed we remarked that it provided a scattergun where a rifle was needed. Preliminary drafting of the enforcement machinery indicates that is even more true than we supposed.

Obviously, there is need for a law providing means of dealing with Communists and fellow travelers. But it should offer as little threat as possible to the freedom of patriotic Americans and it certainly ought

The 4-F Season in Georgia

This is the 4-F season—time for Fall, football, fairs, and frost. The first three are well with us, but frost is overdue, according to The Elberton Star, which says, "It is an accepted theory in these parts that the first frost will come exactly three months from the time the first katydid sounds off in Summer. Bud Rousey says the first one was heard on June 27." By that token, it should have frosted on Sept. 27. The Dawson County Advertiser offers another sign: "The wild goldenrod is in full bloom which means that Jack Frost is just around the corner in these North Georgia hills." Well, by all the signs, frost may be a little late, but the fairs have come back in prewar glory—from Mike Benton's Fair A Ganza which closed Monday to the Hart County Fair opening today and heralded by The Hartwell Sun as the County's "Greatest Exposition." Cobb County has put its 1950 fair, first since '41, down on the books as a record-breaker in attendance, receipts, and exhibits. The Cobb County Times reports that 50,000 to 60,000 people saw the more than 200 exhibits on display and contributed to the gross receipts of over $10,000. "For the first time in history, the fair finished in the black," said "Boll Weevil" Henderson, the Cobb County agricultural agent.

Throughout the State echoes from the fair grounds reflect the improved condition of Georgia agriculture as reflected by the diversification of crops, the swing toward livestock-raising—hogs, beef cattle and dairying.

THE HART COUNTY Harvest Festival, sponsored by the American Legion, has twice the usual space devoted to livestock. Barnesville Kiwanians, promoters of the Lamar County Fair, promise that when the gates open tonight, residents of the area will see some of the finest products of farm, home, and school ever exhibited in the section. The Barnesville News-Gazette reports:

"Bigger and better than ever," is the way The Walton Tribune describes the Walton County American Legion Fair scheduled for next week. The Newton County Farm A Ganza, also Legion-sponsored, starts today with outstanding exhibits of beef cattle herds from the Yellow River country, and, says The Covington News, the added attraction of the Thrill Sisters, "courageous sweethearts of the air... matching every movement, every gesture, swinging and swaying atop slender poles."

In Emanuel County, the fair was in full swing when the Swainsboro Forest-Blade went to press last week, commenting, "Judging from all expressions of the people who have attended, this is the best show the county has been able to muster since fairs have been held here." Sig-not to put enforcement agencies in an impossible position.

That it is doing the latter is indicated by the predicament of the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the State Department. The FBI, because of the registration provisions of the law, stands to lose many if not all its undercover agents whose identity will be revealed. Thirty years' work of the FBI in establishing an elaborate system of detecting Communists is threatened.

Under another clause of the law the State Department must exclude from the country "any one who advocates any form of totalitarian government." But what about Argentina? Spain? Yugoslavia?

The law also provides that all defense projects from which Communists must be barred will be listed in a Federal registry. This, as Mr. Truman pointed out, merely gives Communists a catalogue of our most vital defense installations.

These and other defects of the act can be remedied by a few amendments. When Congress returns, free from the worries of a political campaign, it ought to make the necessary changes.

A New Day

For New Echota

The women of Calhoun, through their various clubs, have initiated a project for the development of the New Echota historic site as a tourist attraction.

The plan calls for a clean-up day at the Indian cemetery near the former capital of the Cherokee Nation. Once the road to the site is paved, they will plant shrubbery around the cemetery and place markers in strategic spots to direct tourists to New Echota.

A narrative marker will be placed conspicuously to give briefly the history of the Cherokee Indians and of the members of the tribe who are buried in Gordon County.

The announcement of the project is one of the first definite indications that someone is going to do something about capitalizing on the Indian background of North Georgia as a tourist attraction.

The objective is a fine one. New Echota is the logical place to begin.

nificant in Emanuel were the exhibits which showed community progress and improvement and the increased amount of space taken by the farm machinery dealers.

The Jackson Progress-Argus opined that the community exhibits at the Butts County Fair might prove outstanding as Flowilla, Towaliga, West Butts, Stark, North Butts, Iron Springs, and Jenkinsburg keenly competed, not for cash prizes alone, but for the satisfaction that comes from getting the blue ribbon which means "best in the county." And the Butts weekly warned, "The time should never come when the cheap and tawdry shows overshadow the exhibits. Fairs, if properly conducted, are educational and worthwhile."

Chattooga counties will be a little different, one learns from the Summerville News. In their annual fair, opening on Wednesday, children will be the feature, in Field Days—dashes, jumps, high and broad, and relays.

IT'S A GREAT institution, the fair—apples, applique, and Anguses; baking, blackberry jam, and best-knit work; corn, cucumbers, and calves (in the livestock barn and on the midway). But to me this year's fair brought a jolt. The same gal who underaged my age by six years on last year's midway (best prize on the rack and only 35 cents) hit it right on the nose this Fall. Either 12 months have taken a terrible toll on yours truly or else that age-teller's eyesight has improved.

The Rural Areas Are Not Fooled

One of the things which irritates me on the part of the harbingers of hate and the peddlers of prejudice is the manner in which they ignore facts in their eternal effort to perpetuate their power.

At a time when the State, as the nation, needs unity as never before, the demagogues are relentlessly attempting to aggravate latent antagonisms—race against race, Protestant against Catholic, gentile against Jew.

Here in Georgia, it has reached the ridiculous extreme that those who would profit politically by the extension of the county unit system to general elections are endeavoring to incite rural residents against urban ones despite the fact that the towns and cities of this State are populated in overwhelming proportion by people but freshly from—and, in most instances, with roots still on—the farm.

Thus far, at any rate, they have not been as successful at setting town against country as they have at pitting race against race. The vast majority of Georgians have no narrow-minded suspicion of their neighbors. They see the effort to extend the county unit system to the general election for what it is, a cheap political trick to make elections easier to buy and steal.

The weekly newspapers of the State, close to the pulse of their rural readers, reflect the growing resistance against the effort to perpetuate such a fraud as well as an understandable resentment at the pettiness of the approach.

They realize that this is no city versus country fight, as the politicians would make it. They realize that residents of small counties are discriminated against, too, sometime in even greater proportion than city dwellers.

The Baxley News-Banner, in one of the State's great farm counties, points this out in the current issue. It demonstrates that Appling County's population (14,013) is greater than the combined population of Georgia's five smallest counties, but they have 10 unit votes to Appling's two. Thus, says the News-Banner, an Appling County farmer's vote would be worth only a fifth as much as one in Chatham, Echols, Quitman, Long or Glascock.

Editor Leodel Coleman, of The Bulloch Herald, published in another great farm county, puts it on an even more personal level.

"We would like to know," he wrote last week, "that when we cast our vote in our Democratic Primary (or General Election) it would be worth as much as the vote of our editor-neighbor, Roy F. Chalker, of the Waynesboro True Citizen in Burke County. It's not that we think we are any better than Editor Chalker. It's just that we think our vote is just as good as his."

"But the fact is, according to our present system, Neighbor Chalker's vote carries three times as much weight as our vote. It takes our vote, your vote and another vote to equal Mr. Chalker's one vote."

"A vote cast in 1950 in Burke County—a four-unit county—had approximately the same value as three cast in Bulloch."

"Is that right?"

"In the 1948 and 1950 primaries, 83 two-unit counties and eight four-unit counties in Georgia had an advantage over Bulloch County in the distribution of voting power under the present county unit system."

"Bulloch's population equals the combined population of Georgia's eight smallest counties, with 16 units to our four. Bulloch's white population is a thousand greater than the combined white populations of Chatham, Echols, Webster, Taliaferro, Lee, Schley, and Clay counties; and approximately three times that of Burke County. One vote cast in Worth, a four-unit county, was worth two cast in Bulloch. It required five Bulloch County votes to be worth as much as four cast in six-unit Troup, while one cast in Schley equalled four cast in Bulloch."

"And we think we are a fine county. We think our citizens are as good as those there in the State. And we're right."

"EXCEPT WHEN WE STEP UP TO THE POLLS TO CAST OUR VOTE!"

Personally, I have learned over a long period of years, never to underestimate the power of demagoguery. But, judging from such evidences of lucid thinking on the part of residents of the State's non-urban areas, it may well have taken the wrong tack in its effort to spread the inequities and inequities of the county unit system.

A Profitable Convention Trip

Frank Edwards, of the State Law Department, and Bill Lester, of the State Tax Revision Committee, have returned from a national convention of Legislative Service Agencies in Washington with ideas that could help them in their work with the Georgia Legislature.

Frank is assigned to draft bills for legislators wanting legal help a few months before a session of the General Assembly, and while the Legislature is in session. Bill is the full-time director of the Tax Revision Committee, which is the Georgia Legislature's only committee with a full-time officer.

The convention at Washington was attended chiefly by employees of full-time Legislative Councils. Twenty-five states have Legislative Councils, or comparable agencies. Such councils study subjects of importance to the Legislature during the interim between sessions. Such councils are permanent joint legislative committees which meet periodically during the interim and give advance consideration to various problems expected to confront the next Legislature. They have the services of continuing research staffs with their accumulated resources. With this equipment, the councils can develop comprehensive and impartial analyses of public issues and make these analyses available to all solons for study and use.

Changes Needed Many members of Georgia's General Assembly have expressed the opinion, as they prepare to come here in January, that improvements should be made in the procedure of Georgia's General Assembly. They might well investigate the possibility of creating a Legislative Council.

Here are the two needs which the national group says a Legislative Council fills: First, councils provide machinery for effective legislative partnership with the executive in formulation of policy. Representation on a council of the legislative leadership of both houses combines the council's responsibility with that of the majority faction leadership for effective legislation. The council's ability to convene between sessions provides continuing leadership, the absence of which would deprive the Legislature, as contrasted with the executive, of full opportunity for public service.

Second, Legislative Councils provide a means—through research reports, hearings, accounts of meetings, etc.—by which a Legislature can obtain a basis of fact upon which to base its deliberations. This objective is furthered, particularly, when there is available a competent, adequately supported, and properly staffed legislative reference service to serve the members of the Legislature in general.

Publication of council research studies before a legislative session convenes affords the solons and the public greater opportunity for analysis and discussion of public issues than is usually provided.

Conscientious Georgia has never had a more square shooter, a more conscientious public official, a more capable officeholder, or a more honest person in her capitol than State Auditor Ed Thrasher. Yet, this is the time of year—when the Auditor checks the books—that Thrasher's tenacious protection of the taxpayers' money loses him friends among a few State officials.

It's a sad life, but we hope the Auditor will continue to perform his duties. Sometimes he is the only one who will give out such information on friend as well as foe when capitol newsmen are trying to tell Georgia taxpayers where their money is going. And sometimes this guardian of the treasury is threatened with political reprisals. Elected by the Legislature itself for an indefinite term, however, Thrasher, by his impartiality, is held in high esteem by Gov. Herman Talmadge, as he was by former Acting Gov. M. E. Thompson, former Gov. Ellis Arnall and former Gov. Eugene Talmadge.

THE PULSE OF THE PUBLIC

The Constitution welcomes letters on either side of any subject. They should not exceed 200 words and must be signed, although names will be withheld on request. We regret none can be returned. Address all letters to The Editors, Constitution, Atlanta, Ga.

Flower in Lapel

The Editors: The Constitution's front page of Oct. 4 knocked my newspaper sensibilities for a dizzy loop!

It was like Fred Astaire in white tie and tails sans his boutonniere, or a flawlessly dressed dowager in an opera box without benefit of lognette.

Alas, there was not a single news picture. Looking to the upper left-hand corner, I thanked God for McGill. MRS. R. W. BALLARD, Winder.

Naturally

The Editors: I read with deep interest McGill's column about "left-handers are lucky." You didn't mention "left-handed girls." Does the special guard of destiny apply to them also? I'm one of these. A READER, Atlanta.

(Editor's Note—Of Course!)

Spirit of the Law

The Editors: I will soon be 89 years old and have been a citizen and taxpayer of my county for 60 years. Now I am unable to work and have been drawing a small old-age pension. I live 15 miles from the county seat back in the hills. My wife owns a little mountain farm which we are unable to work—just have a garden and truck patches which do not furnish enough for us a living.

Our little home needed a new roof and other repairs and we had no money to pay for the repairs, so my wife sold some timber growing on the land to get the money to make the repairs. When they found she had sold this timber they stopped my little pension, which leaves us with nothing to go upon or to pay our taxes.

I am helpless. I cannot do any work of any kind and have no income from any source, and it seems very unfair that they should stop my little pension when I need it most. Is there not something that could be done about a situation like this? Is it the spirit of the law that I should be deprived of this little income under the circumstances? A CITIZEN, Higdon's Store, Ga.

A Shrimper Speaks

The Editors: An open letter to the Georgia State Game and Fish Commission:

As a resident of one of the coastal counties (McIntosh), and as I have made my living for the past few years as a commercial shrimp fisherman and dealer, I would like to make my views known to you, in the light of the commission's

—Raleigh News and Observer
"Past, Boys, Not Now! Come Back After Election!"

recent decision to keep the sounds of the State closed to commercial fishing the year around.

An effort has also been made to make it appear that shrimp fishermen want to open the sounds and the rivers and the creeks the year around. This is an absurdity. The shrimp fishermen want the sounds, and sounds only, open at two specific seasons of the year when, to quote the words of the U. S. Fish and Wildlife experts, there is an abundant supply of mature shrimp in the sounds.

The heaviest run of mature shrimp in Georgia waters occurs during the months of September, October and November. Due to the high winds which prevail during these months it is a matter of record that for the past three years, during which time the sounds have been closed, the boats have been able to fish outside on an average of only 10 to 15 days per month. Therefore, instead of 90 days' fishing during the heavy run, they only get 30 to 45 days. If the sounds were open at this season as they should be, the boats could fish almost every day, as only extremely bad weather would prevent fishing in the protected waters of the sounds, while only a moderate wind will make the outside waters too rough to fish.

Now I would like to ask the commissioners, individually and collectively, why Georgia fishermen are not allowed to catch Georgia-raised, mature shrimp in Georgia waters before they begin their seasonal migration? Especially since the commission was advised by all the Government authorities that the sounds could be opened at this period with no harmful effects to sport fishing or any other interests. It is a well recognized practice of the laws of conservation to harvest any and all crops at maturity. Valona, Ga. PETER R. KITTLES.

Let Them Vote

The Editors: The Negroes, in their recent non-segregation suit, claim their Constitutional rights are being violated by barring them from white schools.

Being a Democrat, I have always been under the impression that we could spend our money, associate with whom we pleased, talk to whom we pleased and say what we pleased. The Constitution of the United States gives us this privilege.

Now, the Negro is trying to take away from the white race the identical thing they claim has been taken away from them, Constitutional rights. If the Supreme Court rules that they can attend our white schools, by all rights promised us, the court also will violate the Constitution of the United States.

It is hard to believe that the courts, lawfully, could order any state, county or city government to allow the Negro to attend classes with our children or spend our money building them more schools than they pay for. It is a known fact that the Negroes pay only 7 per cent of the taxes collected in the entire United States. Therefore, they are already enjoying 83 per cent more for their money than the white people.

Before any decision is made by the court, every Negro in the United States should be given a chance to vote as to whether or not he wishes to be left alone to advance as he is now doing, or be forced to attend classes along with the whites. It would be a safe bet that the majority would want to be left alone to find their own levels. CARL GARRETT, Atlanta.

"In every thing by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known unto God." (Philippians 4:6)

The doctor first feels the pulse of the ill person. Other symptoms may appear, but determining the beat of the heart is primary.

The pulse of the spirit is prayer. If it is weak or spasmodic, concern for one's health is valid.

*God is as near as the need of our hearts. By many ways He seeks to impart to us His dreams and hopes.

To as many as make room for Him in their daily schedule He comes with power to enlighten, sustain and redeem.

The mystery of life is still a mystery to him who draws continually from the Father's resources, but it is as a light ever brighter and broader.

Father, we would practice Thy presence. Impart to us a faith that will bear the weight of our spiritual demands this day.

Stick to Your Knitting

Why didn't somebody tell us about knitting? Certainly we knew some people knitted—Madame LeFarge at the guillotine during the French Revolution, for one, and Eleanor Roosevelt in and out of the White House, on and off planes all over the world, for another. But knowing about knitting and understanding what a marvelously beneficial pursuit knitting is, were, of course, two different things. So great was our ignorance that we assumed people knit (or is it knitted?) for the exclusive purpose of enveloping all their kith and kin in a vast variety of yarny concoctions such as scratchy socks, stretchy sweaters and afghans that tickle noses and bring on sneezes.

Now we know better. Naturally people who knit make things. (At least that's what our young instructor keeps TELLING us!) But the things they make out of wool are just a by-product of knitting. The real purpose of knitting, its principal aim, its best achievement, is the great inner peace it brings the knitter.

A bit of knitting in your hand is a calming, satisfying thing. It's both an aid to digestion and to philosophizing. For one thing it takes the poison out of the white man's burden of waiting.

There is known poison in waiting. You get the jitters waiting for the bus to come or a friend to pick you up or your husband or wife to bring you the car. You spend hours out of every working day caught in an eddy of traffic downtown, helplessly chewing your nails and generating ulcer-making juices. You wait on the dentist, the doctor, the beauty operator, the plumber and the postman.

Waiting ruins your disposition and stymies your thought processes. You can get caught in the trap of waiting and go quietly crazy. Or you can pull out your knitting and purr a row, knit a row and forget where you are and where you'd planned to be. There's a soothing rhythm to the movement of the needles—especially if you're a doped type who never knows when you've dropped a stitch—and there's satisfaction in feeling something growing within your hands.

Besides, the very smallness of the task—one stitch at a time—has a therapeutic effect. One stitch and then another infinitely small and unimportant in themselves, and yet going to making up the fabric of the whole.

Pretty soon you get the idea that one little thing at the time—one glimpse of the city sky at noonday, one little act of kindness, one trifling job done well, one small hope preserved . . . these are important, too, in the whole fabric of life.

Ah, yes, we're nuts about knitting. That Thing we're making?

We—well, it's a sweater and out of all our relatives and friends it's bound to fit SOMEBODY we know.

Jest Plain Folks, Those Hollywooders

Today, once and for all, I'd like to give the lie to the libel that Hollywood folk are a breed apart—that they're exhibitionists who specialize in double-dealing and double-living. As I know them, and I know them plenty well, they just happen to be slightly more photogenic versions of your Uncle Jonathan and your Aunt Esmerelda—ordinary citizens who work hard, send their kids to Sunday School and get misty-eyed when they see the Red, White and Blue spanking in the breeze.

What's that? The gent in the checked vest wants proof? Okay, but since the principals in the tale coming up are modest people I'll have to alias up their names. . . .

Moira Gage A few years ago Moira Gage, one of the most publicized patooties in filmdom, divorced Hubby No. 4, a scenario writer, and married Hubby No. 5, a set designer. These multiple marriages, I hasten to add, do not mean that Moira was promiscuous; they only go to show that, if it's love that makes the world go round, the star had such an overdose of this commodity that she went around a bit faster than most.

Toward the end of the war, as you may remember, a lot of writers and directors with Hungarian and Czech names were showing up in Hollywood, and because of their aristocratic backgrounds and accents most of them were received with open arms and salons. One in particular, a Czech director I'll call Matchek, was welcomed with particularly open arms by Moira who was so smitten that she decided to make him Hubby No. 6.

Moira, like any Main Street hausfrau, was naturally anxious for her prospective husband to be a bang-up success, and so she set out to tell him to the executives of her studio. "Matchek's a great director," she told them, "and it so happens he owns the rights to a story that would be perfect for me. Why don't you buy it for my next picture? There's only one condition—Matchek must direct."

The studio heads knew what Moira didn't—that she was no longer the box-office attraction she was quacked up to be, but they also knew that if she were properly handled her past glories might carry her along for another picture or two. And so, out of loyalty to an old money-maker—and touched by her devotion to her next husband—they agreed to buy both Matchek and his story.

To See the Boss A couple of days after the film went into production, the refugee dropped in to see the studio boss.

"As you know," he said, "I love dear Moira very much, but there's one thing I love even more—my integrity as an artist. And when I make a picture I permit nothing—not even love—to stand in the way. Therefore, in all honesty, I got to tell you that in this particular picture dear Moira stinks, and I think you ought to replace her with—" And here the incorruptible one named an up-and-coming actress who had recently been signed by the studio.

"I'll see what I can do," said the understanding bossman.

The rest is quickly told. Moira was kicked out of the role and simultaneously out of Matchek's life, and the director, specializing in sentimental films about home life, went on to become one of the wonder boys of Hollywood.

As for Moira, I see her occasionally in one of the more shadowy midtown spots in Manhattan. As a rule, she's nursing a Martini and, if the scuttlebutt is to be believed, still carries a torch for the Czech who was to have been Hubby No. 6.

And that's all there is to this just-folksy tale about a boy and a girl in the land of the gold coconuts—dead ringers, I'm sure you'll agree, for your Uncle Jonathan and your Aunt Esmerelda.

KNOW YOUR GEORGIA

by C. J. Holleran

Last of the Slave Markets

Said to be the only original slave market still standing in Georgia, this unique building occupies a prominent place in the business district of Louisville. Although there are no records that date the erection of the structure, it is believed to have been built when the town was the capital of Georgia in 1796. Slaves were valuable assets and, surprising as it may be, legal records show that the beautiful story-book plantations, livestock, houses and equipment brought less cash than the slaves when wills were executed.

CHANNING COPE

Country Boy In Gotham

NEW YORK CITY—Well, the Friends of the Land saved many a ton of topsoil here today in the Georgian ballroom, of one of New York's much-too-big hotels. We will save another flock of it before we adjourn tomorrow. Chief Hugh Bennett, of the Soil Conservation Service, and Louis Bromfield, of Malabar Farm, were in fine form and told an audience of about 300 New Yorkers and visitors the inter-related story of water and soil. Chief Bennett was given the Friends' annual award for service in soil conservation. A considerable display of Park Avenue farmers turned out for the meeting and were given a good deal of good-natured kidding. Nevertheless, they are pretty serious about this matter of soil and water saving. The water shortage this year and their contacts with other parts of the country have driven them to take the situation seriously.

I sat with the group around a platter of smoked salmon hors d'oeuvres on the top floor of a Park Avenue apartment overlooking Manhattan and heard the most serious discussion on topsoil, contour farming, the need for a hiding place outside of New York City, man's inner need for contact with the land, and other such chatter as usually takes place at gatherings of Friends of the Land. Fairfield Osborne, head of the Conservation Foundation and author of "Our Plundered Planet" (a classic), seems to be the guiding influence among these people we hear so much and know so little about. I came away with the feeling that Park Avenue farming is quite nice—not too different from front-porch farming.

I found considerable interest among New Yorkers in buying Southern farms. The mothers want to get their children away from the intolerable traffic and other congestions of the city. The places in Connecticut are filling up so rapidly they no longer afford surcease from metropolitan strife. Upper New York State is hard to buy.

A personal note may not be out of order. The head of Devon-Adair Farmers Book Club told me that "Front Porch Farmer" is running first and second in popularity among his readers week after week here in New York and that real estate agents are using it to induce New Yorkers to buy lands in Georgia.

Among the friends attending the convention and who are well known to Georgians are Russell Lord, editor of The Land; W. J. Coad, of Omaha; Ed Condon, of Chicago; Kent Leavitt, of Milbrook, N. Y.; Dr. Jonathan Forman, of Ohio; Ollie Fink, of Ohio; John Wheeler, of North American Newspaper Alliance; Dr. Fairchild Osborne, and (of course) Chief Bennett and Louis Bromfield.

I will spend tomorrow at Kent Leavitt's dairy farm in Milbrook and observe the making of "Poona" cheese. This should be extremely interesting.

WESTBROOK PEGLER

Surely He Has Nothing To Fear

NEW YORK—As an appeal to the intelligence of the voters of California, and as his own commentary on their intelligence, Jimmy Roosevelt has issued a comic-strip magazine similar to those which are sold to children, depicting himself as a leader, statesman and conspicuous hero of the Second World War in which his captain was Colonel Evans Carlson, a notorious pro-Communist and a service politician. The eaglet says nothing, however, about his connection with the interesting affairs of David Smart, of Chicago, the publisher and part-owner of Esquire and Coronet magazines. When he uttered his memorable and markedly insufficient reply to Alva Johnston's documented charge that he had exploited his father's presidency to force his insurance business, Jimmy used the title "I'm glad you asked me." He said he would always be glad to answer legitimate questions.

He should, therefore, before election day, demand that the Securities and Exchange Commission in Washington release the secret record of the Smart case. The commission will not let anyone outside its own official set read the transcript of this inquiry which culminated in a criminal case. Certain affairs of Jimmy Roosevelt were involved in the inquiry.

An attorney who formerly was connected with the SEC states in writing that on March 3, 1939, Smart testified at a "private" hearing of the SEC in New York that he turned over $75,000 to John Sargent, Jimmy's partner in the insurance business with headquarters in Boston, to make good an investment which Sargent was supposed to have made for Smart which turned out badly.

This lawyer made notes from the official transcript in the offices of the SEC. He says there was question whether the $75,000 ever was repaid.

Smart himself has stated that, as a softening-up process, Jimmy invited him to spend a night in the White House, although they were total strangers. He described the invitation as a rush-act. He couldn't sleep that night.

"Funny," he said, "when you project your mind back and realize what suckers we were. That night in the White House I remember what a thrill it was to go over to the desk, take some White House stationery and write mother a letter. I felt that her son had arrived. I wrote four or five letters on White House stationery."

Recollections of several persons who attended the hearings vary. One, a man of high standing, firmly insists that a member of the commission immediately went to the White House when this matter was mentioned and told President Roosevelt. The record being sealed in the archives of the SEC in Washington, it is impossible to ascertain for public knowledge whether, in that case, the commissioner here referred to made a formal entry of such a visit in the official record. The former official referred to here asserts that such a visit should have been recorded.

Harry McDonald, the present chairman of the SEC, is a Republican but he is also a layman and therefore accepts without a dispute a fantastic proposition conceived by the lawyers who have been raising a body of artificial administrative law to suit their purposes ever since the SEC was created in 1934. Mr. McDonald was willing to open the record. But an assistant, a lawyer, retired for a few minutes and returned to say that the record was there all right but was under seal.

He and McDonald advanced the proposition that the SEC, a secretive body of the New Deal bureaucracy, with great powers to blackmail political enemies and protect members of its own political camp from embarrassment or worse, was almost the same as a grand jury.

"That is an outrageous position," I said in effect to Mr. McDonald.

A lawyer who formerly was a member of the SEC and knows the letter and implications of the act as well as anyone else, insisted that there was absolutely nothing in the act to justify this secrecy. He said the SEC bore no resemblance to the grand jury institution.

It appears that some lawyers outside the commission concede that secrecy is reasonable when no criminal process results from the inquiries. But there was a criminal case here and Smart was fined $10,000 and given a suspended sentence of two years on a plea of nolo contendere, the charge being violation of the SEC act. There were other defendants who took similar action. If Smart has received a presidential pardon as others did who had traffic with the White House and the Democratic Party I should mention that. But he himself did not mention any pardon when I spoke to him a few months ago. I have tried to check with him but without success. The latest word is that he has gone to Paris.

Smart's version of the $75,000 deal is that the money was transmitted to Sargent as a loan to Jimmy in return for a demand note signed by Sargent with a side understanding that it was to be for a term of three months.

"Sargent said Jimmy was going to get it from the old lady," Smart said. "Sargent said Jimmy was getting a divorce."

In view of Smart's willingness to talk freely, the commission's secretive attitude obviously is not maintained to shield him. And surely the candidate for governor of California has nothing to fear.

Looking for POWER?

Better Buy Buick!

THAT bold bonnet that stretches out before your eyes on a 1950 Buick isn't there just for show.

Lift it up, and you'll find that the space beneath is abundantly occupied, by one of the biggest hordfuls of power you'll find in any motorcar.

What you're looking at is Buick's modern version of the high-compression valve-in-head engine, which gains extra wallop from the fact that it uses the exclusive Fireball combustion principle.

We could list a lot of mechanical reasons why fuel gives up extra power in a Fireball engine—how it's wrapped in a swirling, ball-shaped charge—how it burns with a smooth, clean thrust that delivers maximum action.

But the best way to find out what all this means is to touch off the eager horsepower out on the highway by a gentle nudge of your toe—and feel your shoulders press deep in the cushions behind them.

Now all this sounds thrilling, you say, but how about the feed-bills for all these horses? How about miles-per-gallon?

The practical answer to that one is found in this year's experience with the SUPER and SPECIAL—and even the ROADMASTER.

In all three, the horsepower was stepped up at the start of the year—and in all three, happy owners report the best mileage in modern Buick experience.

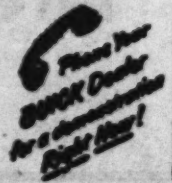

This is due to a little-known but authentic engineering fact—which is that an engine burns less gas when it doesn't have to labor. At any normal driving speed, therefore, extra power is extra thrifty.

So we say again—if you're looking for power—mighty power—buoyant power—silken power—thrifty power—better buy Buick.

Your Buick dealer is eager for the chance to demonstrate how sound this hint really is.

Only BUICK has Dynaflow Drive® and with it goes HIGHER-COMPRESSION and valve-in-head power in three engines. (New F-263 engine in SUPER models.) • NEW PATTERN STYLING, with MULTI-GUARD fender, taper-through fenders • TRAFFIC-HANDY SIZE, low over-all length for easier parking and garaging • EXTRA-WIDE SEATS, cradled between the axles • SOFT BUICK RIDE, from oil-coil springing, Safety-Ride rims, low-pressure tires, ride-steadying torque-tube pressure first, ride-steadying torque-tube pressure first, ride-steadying torque-tube pressure first.

Tune in HENRY J. TAYLOR, ABC Network, every Monday evening.

Rural Crime Upswing Reported by FBI

Manslaughter, Auto Thefts Predominate in Cities

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8—(AP)—The country cross roads continued to hold the crime spotlight during the first half of 1950, an FBI report showed Sunday.

The Bureau's semiannual report listed an increase of 7.4 percent in rural crime compared with the same period in 1949. In the first half of last year, rural crime jumped 7.6 percent.

The 1950 upswing for rural areas was registered in every category except negligent manslaughter and automobile theft, which were down 3.7 percent and 3.9 percent respectively.

Rural murders were up 1.6 percent; rape, 4.8; robbery, 3.4; aggravated assault, 4.7; burglary, 14.9, and larceny, 5.6.

In contrast, the Bureau's report showed that city crime increased only 1.9 percent. Biggest jump for the cities was in negligent manslaughter, which went up 19.9 percent.

Other categories: Murder down 1.1 percent; rape down 4.6; robbery down 3.3; aggravated assault up 4; burglary up 1.9; larceny up 2.2, and auto theft up 3.2.

Reports to the FBI from 1,652 cities representing a population of 49,618,222 showed that during all of 1949 an average of one out of every four urban persons was charged with some traffic violation.

Furthermore, the report showed, one out of every 20 city dwellers was charged during the year with some other violation such as drunkenness, disorderly conduct, assault, larceny and the like.

Fifty-five city policemen were killed in line of duty during 1949, the fewest in five years.

Based on FBI fingerprint records, the arrests of males increased one percent and arrests of females declined 3.3 percent in the first six months of 1950 compared with the first half of 1949.

A total of 63,615 persons under 21 years of age were arrested and fingerprinted, representing 15.8 percent of total arrests.

The predominating age of persons arrested was 21.

More than 60 percent of those arrested in the first half of 1950 were repeaters.

The Portuguese empire began to wither under British and Dutch onslaughts in the seventeenth century.

FAVORS ANTI-MASK BILL

Muscogee's Rep. Dicus Supports Sales Tax

(Editor's Note: This is another in the series of articles on men nominated to the 1951 Georgia Legislature.)

A general sales tax is inevitable in order to finance the Minimum Foundation Program for Education, in the opinion of Rep. Harry Dicus, of Muscogee County.

"Dicus, who won a special election in 1949 to fill an unexpired term and then won re-election to the House last May, said he hopes the general sales tax is passed with complete tax revision in the income and ad valorem fields. He also hopes the anti-mask bill will be passed this time."

"I believe the problem of financing the Minimum Foundation Program for Education to be the most important matter of business that the Legislature will have at the next session," Dicus remarked.

"I favor it wholeheartedly."

Dicus was born at Columbus Nov. 2, 1922, graduated from Columbus High, and had two years' pre-law training at Auburn. He served three years with a B-24 crew with the Eighth Army Air Force overseas.

Dicus received his law degree from Emory University in 1948 and has practiced law in Columbus since then. He is a member of St. Luke Methodist Church, Pi Kappa Phi social fraternity, American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Columbus Lawyers' Club, and Junior Chamber of Commerce. He served on the Columbus Community Planning Council and the School of Nursing Committee of the Columbus City Hospital.

Farm Home Pyre for Four

MANCHESTER, Iowa, Oct. 8—(AP)—Four members of a farm family perished Sunday in a fire that destroyed their home.

The bodies of the victims were found near the back door. This indicated they had tried to escape but had been trapped by the flames.

The dead were Charles D. Morris, 84; his wife, 82, and their children, Earl and Mabel, both about 50.

Tremor Recorded On Pacific Island

BOMBAY, India, Oct. 8—(AP)—Poona meteorological office reported Sunday night that its seismograph recorded an earthquake of "great intensity" with its epicenter near Timor. That island is in the Pacific north of Australia.

A short time later, the office said, another shock of moderate intensity was recorded, with its center northeast of Dibrugarh, in Assam. Assam has been the scene of repeated shocks since the big tremor of Aug. 15.

IDEAS FOR Television YOUR LIVING ROOM

Motorola, leader in television, gives you helpful hints on TV and interior decoration!

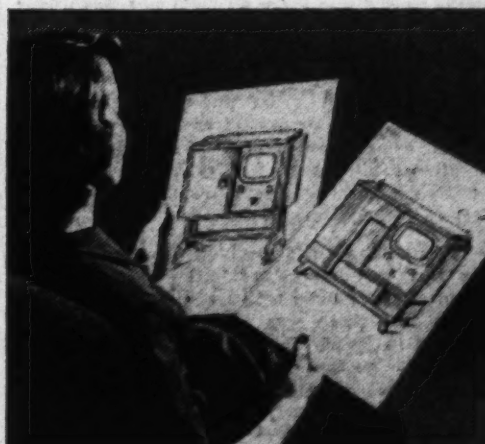

Where to put it? Living room? Dining room? Den? Only YOU can answer. Television is the biggest thing that's happened to the American family since the invention of the automobile. So where there's TV, there are people—old folks, young folks—and neighbors. The entire family—including sprawling kids with their friends. Think—before you decide! P.S. Let's face it—just as one radio set led to another and another, the day of "the second TV set" has already arrived in thousands of homes. That gives everybody a chance to watch his (or her) pet program.

How near—how far? You don't need a living room "as big as all outdoors" for a television set with a 19" screen. According to the president of the New York State Optometric Association, 6 to 10 feet is the best viewing distance for even the largest picture tubes. Keep that in mind when you arrange your furniture. Place the most comfortable chairs or sofa right in front of your television set.

Period or Modern? Your Motorola dealer will show you traditional styles or stream-lined "moderns" for any decorative scheme—in table models, consoles, and television-radio-phonograph combinations.

The Fashion Academy Awarded this Gold Medal to Motorola "for distinctive design in television cabinetry." Your TV set will be your most "looked at" piece of furniture. So choose your cabinet with care!

See Motorola TV—your eye tells why... it's a better buy. Motorola's leadership in cabinet design as well as performance is recognized with the 1950 Fashion Academy Gold Medal Award. Typical example of Motorola supremacy is this Combination Model 20F1. Clear, steady 20" picture, only 2 simple controls, Built-in Antenna, super FM/AM radio, "Multi-play" changer plays all record speeds, price only $625. View it at your dealer's along with other beautiful Motorola models from $219.95 to $650.

Your eye tells why—It's a Better Buy!

A SOUTHERN INSTITUTION FOR EIGHTY-THREE YEARS

LET'S SEE NOW

'The Best Society
The World Affords'

By DORIS LOCKERMAN

It was a long way back last week from the news that Atlanta will have music in its public library, to the time when Mr. Carnegie's gift to the American people was generally a dimly lighted memorial tomb where derelicts seeking warmth or shade made up most of the year-round city trade.

Those were the days when dusty towers of old books, smelling acridly of age and molding bindings, were stacked almost to the huge-domed ceilings, and could be reached only by playful children or pack mules. Spinners and grey-faced intellectuals sometimes attempted the spiral ascent, but only in the direct determination to be informed. The community at large found the formidable stone steps leading to the front door too great a barrier to be overcome.

Atlanta's new library building, while classically austere of facade, will be alive with light and color, and the branches scattered throughout the City exude whimsically good humor, even to modern architecture and a huge jolly figure of Uncle Remus' Br'er Rabbit beckoning the wary to enter.

We have been promised a record room, where fine music can be heard and a television viewing room, and a place for viewing films in groups. Already the library has established a wide reputation for its information service, serving hundreds of telephone callers each day with every kind of query in the world from the care and feeding of puppies to the complexion of the second-to-the-last wife of Henry VIII.

Elsewhere in America magnificent institutions operate travel bureaus, speakers' bureaus, courses in public speaking, teach foreign languages, show educational films, operate "ceiling books" with texts projected overhead to bed patients in their homes, and hold such things as chess tournaments for those who find reading too dull.

Such libraries actually are far too infrequently found. Nine out of 10 American libraries are still inadequate, and 35,000,000 Americans living in 600 counties have no library service at all. This is true in the rich urban North, East and West as well as the rural South. In only a few states do all the people have some slight library service.

This week 600 to 800 men and women will be in Atlanta attending the biennial convention of the Southeastern Library Association. They will represent the 101 county libraries, and the 34 counties served through 15 regional libraries of the State.

Their meeting is the outgrowth of an informal gathering in 1920 when 100 librarians from seven southeastern states met together at the Signal Mountain Inn in Tennessee and compared hopes and failures before the big open fireplace in the lobby.

From then on, they met regularly, their number growing. Their motive was to find facts, think out ways by which the darkness of large areas of people could be penetrated by book service. They sought for causes, not alibis. Standards for libraries and training were set up during these years, most of which have been reached and surpassed. So always do ideas and dreams act as forerunners of the accomplished fact.

Subsequent meeting of the library group heard Jonathan Daniels, May Lamberton Becker, Margaret Mitchell, Ralph McGill, with every convention expanding in attendance and hope. Dr. Allen Albert will be the featured speaker of the current convention.

A top Nazi once warned of the "American public-library menace," and wherever despots would rise, books are always banned and burned.

But no violence or discouragement has been able to change the words of Andrew Carnegie, the man who gave away 56 million dollars: "The person who enters a library is in the best society this world affords."

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

It's An Art To Handle Hubby, Still 20 at 40

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: We have been married 21 years. I was 19 and Jay was 20 when we were married. I knew he'd been terribly spoiled by his mother, and that he couldn't handle money, but like so many dewy-eyed girls, I thought that together we could manage. I was brought up to be rather serious, and yet I liked fun, in a clean way.

We had been married only a few months when Jay slapped me one evening in front of my sister, for teasing him. He can't stand being teased, but when he teases, it's funny (he thinks). Well, years passed and we had two fine children, but I didn't dare let them interfere with Jay's pleasures or he would sulk. He always had money for pleasures, but we were always in debt and still are.

Once I tried handling the money, but it hurt Jay's ego, and so much was missing from his pay by the time he turned it over to me that I gave up. Later I learned he was having affairs. When confronted by the evidence he readily admitted it. He said that at last I'd found out what had been going on all along, and he doubted that it would ever stop. But I felt that he did stop for some years after that; and I for one was very happy and I think he was, too.

Now I'm beginning to have doubts again. He goes out of his way to embarrass me in front of our friends, and when I ask why, he just says he won't argue about it, or he gets furious if I question him further. In spite of all this, I love him and want to have a secure marriage, but I fear he will never grow up. He boasts that he will always be as young as he was at 20; and says me for being "too mature." But I feel that at 40 I can't go around kicking up my heels as I did at 20.—F. Y.

DEAR F. Y.: In having a baby in middle age, you were thereby defeating the very purpose you hoped to achieve. Or at any rate, you were again seriously unsettling the marriage that had begun to subside into a somewhat companionable stride of recent years, when Jay seemed faithful and happy thus.

No doubt this peaceable period was largely due to your having more time to give him, inasmuch as the two older children had outgrown babyhood and were moving into self-help years.

His recent outbreak of hostility, which may include renewed incidents of infidelity as you suspect, is unquestionably a compulsive expression of resentment of the new lease on responsibility, and a slap at you for bringing it on him.

In spilling him terribly, his mother was aiming at enslavement, too; and you've paid dearly for stepping into her shoes, for that of course is the role he's assigned you in marriage. Having traded his mother for you, he privately feels utterly dependent upon your emotional support.

This hateful bias, of begrudging happiness to intimates and unconsciously refusing to contribute to it, is fairly commonplace neurotic behavior; and Dr. Karen Horney discusses it from various angles in one of her excellent books, "The Neurotic Personality of Our Time," published by W. W. Norton and Company.

Eat Well To Keep Good Health Longer

A doctor friend requests that I write on the importance of adequate nutrition for older people. "Every day older folks come into my office with definite signs of poor nutrition. They complain of vague aches and ailments—yet they are always surprised when I point out they are not eating the foods that furnish materials needed to ward off senility."

A woman will tell him apologetically: "Since the children are gone, I don't bother fixing much food. . . . It hardly seems worthwhile. All I feel like eating is a little toast and tea for supper."

And that way she gets more tired and listless and less inclined to bother, and then definite symptoms of malnutrition show up. Many people think appetite is a safe guide as to what to eat and how much. But that all depends on how appetite has been trained. For example, if you have a fondness for starches and are prone to make a meal of bread and butter and perhaps a cup of tea . . . your appetite may be satisfied, but your nutrition needs will certainly not be met.

Malnutrition means poor nutrition, and in our country the cause is generally wrong food habits. Lack of funds may figure in too, with the dollar buying so much less, but with knowledge of basic nutrition needs, it is possible to buy good nutrition on a limited budget. But on any budget, as activity lessens and less food is required, the foods which must not be slighted are those that contribute the materials needed to keep the body in good working condition.

From middle age on, it is particularly important to follow the excellent nutrition rule to eat what you should first . . . then eat what you want within your fuel (calorie) requirements. Here are the foods which should be given first place in the diet: milk and cheese, vegetables and fruits, wholegrain cereal and bread, and meat or seafood.

It's a bother to fix vegetables and prepare a balanced meal; but when you think of your daily three meals in terms of more years of enjoyable living, that puts a different light on it. Frozen vegetables make things easier . . . some are frozen so only part of the package need be used at one time. Make it a point to have one or more servings of dark green leafy or yellow vegetables each day. Drink three glasses of milk every day to meet the increased calcium requirements. Unless the doctor advises against them, eat an egg each day; and a serving of lean meat or fish for necessary protein.

Have a couple of fruits daily, including a citrus fruit or juice to furnish vitamin C. Red, unhealthy gums and sores at the mouth corners are signs of lack of this vitamin. Also fleeting aches and pains may be attributable to a vitamin C deficiency. Citrus fruit or juice is the best source of this vitamin . . . tomatoes and juice, next best.

It has now been proved that a great many afflictions of middle and old age are directly traceable to poor nutrition and wrong food habits.

Business Women Create Tallulah Scholarship

Announcement of a new $2,000 scholarship fund established by the Atlanta Business and Professional Women's Club featured the meeting of the Board of Trustees of Tallulah Falls School held last week at the Henry Grady Hotel. This is the second scholarship to be created by this group of business women, the first having been established in 1926.

Completion of the Dorothy Copeland Connally scholarship was also announced. Contributions from 156 donors to the scholarship endowment provide for dormitory students at Tallulah.

Mrs. Alvin Barge, Jr., new president of the Young Matrons' Circle for Tallulah, was welcomed. She presented a group of friends whom Mrs. Pope Fuller, director, was instrumental in getting interested in the school, the result being the making of 2,000 feet of colored moving pictures of the students' daily activities and life at the school. The pictures were made by Robert H. Stanley, Gates H. Dunn and Dr. D. Hoyt Simpson.

Mrs. Ralph Butler, executive vice president, presided in the absence of Mrs. Z. I. Fitzpatrick, president and director, and reported on the 1950-51 school term. All buildings were painted and repaired during the summer, new dormitory equipment purchased, and a two-acre lake constructed.

Mrs. Clay Stelling, director of the Junior Section, Georgia Federation, reported a growing interest by younger clubwomen in the school.

The newly elected officers and district president trustees of the Federation were honor guests at the dinner and meeting.

If you're healthy . . .

Retired Nurse Volunteers As Grey Lady

Ten years ago, when Mrs. Alice Taylor Turner retired from active duty as university nurse on the Emory campus, by all rights her career as a registered nurse should have been ended. But to Mrs. Turner, retirement meant freedom to devote herself to volunteer work, for in no time she had gone back to Emory as a Gray Lady, giving four days a week to working at the front desk, greeting incoming patients and putting them at ease with her cheerful reassurance.

Now, in view of the nursing crisis, Mrs. Turner has volunteered for one day a week on the surgical floor of Emory Hospital. "If you're healthy you can't sit in a chimney corner when there's so much to be done," she says briskly.

The new shape is the new shape because it's softer, rounder, and so flattering! Designed with a padded, hip-arched jacket to make the slim skirt appear even slimmer. The new shape Modess box—new because it, too, is designed with a clever purpose in mind. Because the box is skillfully shaped like many other kinds of boxes, you'd never guess it contains Modess. Another tactful idea. . . . Modess boxes are pre-packed before reaching your store. Same number of fine napkins. Regular, Junior, and Super Modess sizes.

DANCERS CHOOSE TOE SHOES WITH ENGLISH ACCENT

CURTAIN RISES MONDAY

Sadler's Wells Ballet To Recall London Evenings for Trio Here

When the Sadler's Wells Ballet Company raises the curtain on its performance Monday evening, at least three of the observers in Atlanta's Municipal Auditorium will be remembering with pleasant nostalgia the stateliness of Covent Garden evenings in London.

Dorothy Alexander, director of the Atlanta Civic Ballet, along with Merilee Smith and Virginia Rich, members of the local company, spent the summer in Europe, and one colorful month as members of the Sadler's Wells Ballet School.

Miss Alexander, who has studied widely in this country and abroad, was charmed with the spirit and the atmosphere of the school, finding a great contrast with the New York concept of schools of ballet. "We were greeted on our arrival by Arnold Haskell, the world famous Director of the School, who is the author of books known to all lovers of the ballet. Unlike schools in this country, where a new student may go for weeks and months without even seeing an instructor except his own, we were immediately introduced to Miss Phillips, principal of the school, Madame Lydia Kyasht, a wonderful dancer of the day of Pavlova, the Ballet Master, Plucis, and many others. We were struck by the dignity and the respect accorded the individual, without any difference because of importance or lack of it. There is a charm and a grace peculiarly theirs, and it extends into the teaching classes."

This courtesy according to Miss Alexander, is reflected in the students' attitudes. A correction in technique brings a grateful, "Thank you" from the student, and the spirit of rivalry is an esthetic one, seeking perfection in execution, rather than personal acclaim.

The real difference between the interpretations of the English company, and those of our own country were made very clear to the Atlantans when the New York Ballet moved into the Covent Garden on the heels of the Sadler's Wells dancers.

"The reverence for tradition, so much a part of the English approach, is evident in their interpretation, making their renditions almost a ritual. On the other hand, the fiercely independent interpretiveness of the Americans carries with it a fire and vibrancy that is stimulating. Definitely, both approaches have much to contribute to the field of the dance."

Miss Alexander and her companions brought back two specific memories from their stay in London. First, they bought 24 pairs of English toe shoes, which they found wonderfully light and supple. "You can put on a new pair, and dance a performance!"

Secondly, they brought back a profound respect for a school where all the students had what Miss Alexander terms, "a gorgeous Arabesque." Atlanta ballet dancers might as well prepare themselves: if the dark-haired dancer has her way, they will attain a "gorgeous Arabesque."

President, New Members Named by Assemblies

Miss Josephine Kane has been named president of The Assemblies, succeeding Miss Alice Mitchell who headed the organization for the past year. The other officers will remain the same, including Miss Annette Livingston, vice president; Miss Dorothy Chapman, secretary; and Miss Gray Powers, treasurer.

New members invited to join The Assemblies include Miss Mary Bailey of Griffin, Misses Florence Monroe, Anne Kinsella, Mary Helen Harrison, Louise Clark, Virginia Weinman, Tish Sharp, Nancy Starr, Renee and Foster Jones, Wingfield Ellis, Anne Lovic Floyd, Anne Weyman, Dina and Helen Lee, Sally Clay, Nancy Frazer, Jane Woodham, Louise McNeil of Marietta; Patricia Cortelyou of Marietta; Harriet Hallman, Mary Thomas, Noel Barnes, Lulu Camp, Barbara Kilgore, Alice Wight, Anne Simpson, Jean McEllan, Harriet Witham, Callie Huger, Anne Warren and Alice Wilson.

The Assemblies have planned a champagne dance to take place at the Piedmont Driving Club on Friday evening, Dec. 22, to which a limited number of invitations will be issued. This annual event is one of the important affairs on the Winter social calendar.

Child Care Institute Slated For Grady Volunteer Aides

A three-part institute for volunteers in the Children's Ward at Grady Hospital will be held this month to familiarize ward aides with the technique of working with hospitalized children and to study, in the interest of mental hygiene, the emotional security and problems of very young patients.

Dr. Joseph Patterson, pediatrician, will address the group Tuesday on the "Attitude of Volunteer Workers Toward Children's Communicable Diseases." And Miss Sarah Carter, who has been teaching clinical pediatrics, will discuss the "Utilization of Volunteers in Children's Wards."

On Oct. 17 Miss Fannin Stokes, teacher from the department of education, will talk on "How to Play With a Sick Child." Mrs. Joseph Gross, a case worker with the Child Welfare Association, will be discussant with Miss Stokes. Both these discussions will be held at Grady Hospital.

The last session will be held on October 24th in the auditorium of the Georgia State Department of Health Building. Mrs. Nell McGlothlin, of the Georgia State Department of Health, and Miss Frances Sanchez, public health nurse, will speak and show a film on the "Emotional Needs of the Hospitalized Child."

Modern Drugless Clinic Benefits Young and Old Alike—Dr. Leigh

Young and old alike receive many benefits from chiropractic adjustments, according to Dr. Daniel B. Leigh, widely known Atlanta chiropractor, pictured with a young patient and her mother in the accompanying photograph.

Dr. Leigh, with the help of an efficient staff, operates one of the most scientific and completely equipped drugless clinics in the South, located at 40 Peachtree Pl., Northwest.

Among the items of modern equipment included in this clinic are a complete X-ray laboratory, the recently introduced Irwin intestinal lavage instruments for colon irrigation, and a thermo-differential indicator which can detect the nerve pressures in the human body.

With these instruments the clinic is designed for the examination and treatment of chronic diseases. In addition chiropractic, physiotherapy and hydrotherapy treatments are provided.

Through his wide research program Dr. Leigh has been successful in correcting gastro-intestinal disorders without surgery. In many cases those who have suffered for years have received relief.

Patients both young and old from all over the South come to Dr. Leigh for treatment of chronic diseases such as toxic troubles, asthma, arthritis, sinusitis, high and low blood pressure and many other ailments. Children suffering from convulsions and old people suffering from arthritis have benefited from his treatment.

All cases are carefully diagnosed before treatment is begun—regardless of the nature of their trouble. Complete X-rays are taken at the beginning of the treatment and the patient's improvement is charted throughout. The clinic, which is located at 40 Peachtree Pl., N. W., is open each day from 9 a. m. to 6 p. m. Evening appointments, as well as day can be made by calling AT. 4411.

PROUD OF PATIENT—Dr. Daniel B. Leigh, noted Atlanta chiropractor looks proudly at his young patient, pretty little three-year-old Barbara Poteete, as she sits in the lap of her mother, Mrs. Claude F. Poteete, of 2343 Buford Hwy., following a chiropractic adjustment at his drugless health clinic, 40 Peachtree Pl., N. W. Barbara suffered convulsions from the time she was ten months old until she went to Dr. Leigh's clinic for treatments last January. Since taking this chiropractic treatment, Barbara has not suffered a single convulsion, according to the report of her mother who testifies that she is most thankful that she found out about Dr. Leigh's clinic.

Only School Of Its Kind In Georgia

The only school of its kind in Georgia, Television Technical Institute, Inc., of 232 Luckie St., N. W., was established in August, 1947. J. D. Muse, the school's President and General Manager, is well known in local business, Veteran and political circles. He has spared neither time nor money in making this one of the finest radio-television schools of the country. His latest innovation is to set up a complete and fully equipped television studio to be used for training students in an advanced Television Camera Technique Course.

In this new course, as in previously established Radio and Television Technician Courses, students will learn by doing. Half of the school time will be spent in theory classroom and the other half of the time in laboratory—in this case mostly in the modern television studio. In addition to camera and control circuits and operating, sound pickup and control, studio lighting and background, special effects machines and complete TV program operation will be taught as part of the course.

In order to make this Television Camera Technique Course outstanding, Mr. Muse has brought to Television Technical Institute a pioneer television engineer and inventor, Major H. C. Hogenkamp.

An inventor in over fifty U. S. and foreign patents in television, Major Hogenkamp is widely known as an educator as well as for his early television inventions and research. He operated and was president of one of the seven private technical schools in the country which trained nearly 1,500 uniformed enlisted men and WACS of the U. S. Signal Corps and the Army Air Force during the early days of the last war. In addition, his school trained approximately one thousand enlisted men of the Signal Corps Reserve who later served in Army Communications duties.

He is the design engineer of television camera chains used in many of the leading schools of this country and is a senior member of the Institute of Radio Engineers, a registered patent agent, U. S. Patent Office and holds a Radioteletype first class license of the Federal Communications Commission.

In addition to the TV Camera Technique course, the regular Fundamentals of Radio & Electronics and Television Technician courses are being carried on at Television Technical Institute. The majority of the students in these courses are veterans attending school under the GI bill. These courses are fully approved by the Department of Veterans Service and the Department of Educational Rehabilitation of the State of Georgia, as well as the Veterans Administration.

The Television Technician course, particularly, is so operated as to turn out skilled and experienced television repairmen. Graduates are in great demand by local television service organizations and at present the school cannot meet the great demand of industry for trained men. Jobs are waiting in large numbers for advanced and graduate television students.

Top priority is now being given to preparation of school facilities and courses to meet the needs of the Armed Forces. It is anticipated that Army or Air Force men may be sent to this and other civilian schools for training as was done in 1942-1943.

In the meantime a new Radio Technician course, based upon Armed Forces training requirements and designed particularly for men in the younger age group of the draft is being inaugurated.

It offers radio training for civilian occupations and complete preparation for the Television Technician course.

Based upon past experience, women will be as urgently needed as men to meet the communications duties.

Sanitary Supply Co., Inc., Receives Carload New Witt Garbage Cans

Don't take less than the best! Get a Witt can, recognized as from 50 percent to 400 percent stronger and more durable than competitive garbage or ash cans on the market today.

Witt cans and pails for every purpose—for both commercial and domestic use—are now being featured by Sanitary Supply Co., Inc., 72 Edgewood Ave., N. E. Officials of the firm announced today that they have just received a solid carload of these famous Witt corrugated cans. This announcement is of special interest to hotels, apartment operators, institutions, homes—in fact, to all who need and use garbage cans.

Sanitary Supply Co., Inc., officials announced that Witt cans bought in quantity are offered at substantial savings. This special inducement is offered only at this time, while stocks are complete. These famous cans are offered

"THEY LAST AND LAST"—Sturdily constructed Witt garbage cans are now being featured by Sanitary Supply Co., Inc., located at 72 Edgewood Ave., N. E. Above, John F. Nance, president of the firm, shows the Witt can display to Mr. and Mrs. Felix G. Bryan.

In all sizes, from five gallons to 33 gallons. They are guaranteed not to leak, and the lids fit tightly and securely. They meet every requirement of city health laws. Witt corrugated cans have been designed for hard service. The manufacturer guarantees they will outlast three to five of the average brand of can.

In addition to Witt cans, Sanitary Supply Co., Inc., widely known for reliability and courteous service for 37 years, carries in stock a complete line of essentials for keeping things clean. Their slogan is "Everything to Clean With."

Sanitary Supply Co., Inc., takes pride in offering its famous "Sansco" line, consisting of many related items for keeping things clean. Homes, institutions, business firms and industrial plants call on Sanitary Supply Co., Inc., for brooms, mops, brushes, waxes, cleaners, paper products, deodorants, disinfectants, insecticides, floor sweep, wiping cloths, mopping equipment, floor machines and vacuums.

"Quick delivery to all parts of the city; careful attention to mail orders" is a motto Sanitary Supply Co., Inc., strives to uphold. For service, call Lamar 3471 or Lamar 3472.

Kids Can Win 'Zoomerang' Guns Free

Hey, kids (and grownups, too), get set! The big Gordy Used Tire Roundup gets under way today!

Officials of the Gordy Tire Company, 119 Ponce de Leon Ave., N. E., announced that the great tire roundup event started officially this morning. Also with this announcement comes news of how every youngster can get absolutely free one of the new, sensational Hopalong Cassidy Zoomerang guns—and make extra money as well!

Called the first new invention in toy guns in 50 years, the Zoomerang gun is something all the youngsters want to own. See accompanying pictures. It's a bright, red, high quality, all plastic, Western-type gun, 6x9 inches, bearing Hoppy's own autograph. A likeness of the famous cowboy is engraved on the handle. The Zoomerang gun is harmless at any range.

To get your Zoomerang gun, here's all you do: Bring two used passenger car tires—any size—to the Gordy Tire Company. The tires must be in serviceable condition. You will be paid the market value price for the tires. At the same time you will receive, without cost, one of the new Hopalong Cassidy Zoomerang guns.

Firm officials also announced that a Zoomerang gun will be given free to any auto owner who comes to Gordy Tire Company and trades his used tires for new, long-wearing Dayton or Gillette tires.

It's colorful. It's exciting. It's the first time in Atlanta, Gordy officials announced. Be the first in your neighborhood to have one of the new Hopalong Cassidy

Rare Musical Collection Theft Laid to Poland

Taken by Prussian Officials,
U. S. Art Director Declares

PARIS, Oct. 8.—Carlton Smith, director of the National Arts Foundation of New York, Sunday accused the Polish Government of making off with a group of valuable musical manuscripts including Beethoven's Ninth Symphony, Mozart's Magic Flute, two acts of Mozart's Figaro, and important works of Brahms, Handel and Mendelssohn.

Smith made the accusation upon his arrival in Paris after a trip to Eastern Europe where he had visited Poland, Czechoslovakia and Yugoslavia. He reported that his search for the musical manuscripts had been in vain and that the Polish Government had refused to give any information concerning their whereabouts.

In his efforts to locate the lost manuscripts, which he described as being among the most valuable of the musical heritage of Western Europe, Smith said that last Monday he had visited the Grasso-Cloister in Silesia where, according to reports, they had been taken in 1943 by officials of the Prussian State Library.

The Cloister, Smith found, now was inhabited by Polish Benedictine nuns. He discovered no

Your Stars Today

General Tendencies—Maybe you can find something interesting and exciting today by using strenuous measures to scare up adventure. All the general trends seem very dull, with an additional feeling of conservatism or restraint which would make almost anyone slow to embark upon anything unfamiliar. Best impulsive moves connected with old friends, study or work needing much attention to detail. Your romances may seem interesting enough but will probably wait until the end of the week before showing much progress.

If you're a Bachelor—Your coming year is apt to find you still a trifle confused about future plans or unsettled in your friendships. Wait until after next Spring before you make final decisions about love affairs, occupation or residence if any of these things require drastic changes or should meet with any family opposition. You are in the midst of an interval in your life when you have to watch your step a little and will not profit by impulsive moves. Please remember this for at least two years to come if you want to avoid trouble.

Mystery Explosion
Blamed on Dynamite

LYNCHBURG, Va., Oct. 8.—(AP)—A dynamite explosion some five miles southeast of here was blamed Sunday by police for the mystery blast which shook parts of the city Saturday night.

Sgt. C. E. Rives, of the Virginia State Police, said he found a huge hole in the ground and uprooted trees atop Chandler's Mountain.

The intensity of the blast, Rives said, indicated that nearly a case of dynamite had been used. He could offer no explanation for anyone setting off the explosion.

In Philadelphia, Methodist Bishop Fred Pierce Corson said there has been more than a 1,000,000 increase nationally in Sunday School attendance in Methodist churches.

Ministers in Chicago reported increased attendance and said they hoped the people now going to church will continue to go and "not desert at the first sign of world-wide peace."

MONDAY MORNING PULPIT

Pastor Praises Work Of Community Chest

Realizing the growing importance of religion to the people of Georgia, The Atlanta Constitution begins today a new feature written by a different minister each week in which he will highlight the message of his sermon to his congregation Sunday. Timeliness of the sermon topic will be considered in selection of the minister each week.

By DR. HARRISON McMAINS, First Christian Church

Gen. 4:9—"... Am I my brother's keeper?"

Many of the churches in Atlanta are observing Community Chest Sunday. We are doing this because we believe in the Community Chest and the Agencies supported by this fund.

There was a time when the major portion of the work carried on now by Chest-supported agencies was a function of the church. That day is past. Churches do not have the equipment, personnel or finances to do the job. Therefore, we are dependent upon other helps to do the necessary work. To me the Agencies of the Chest represent the arms of the church at work in our community.

Examine, if you will, the work of these various organizations, visit them, talk to the directors and you will discover that they are rendering service to our community that is indispensable. Visualize if you can our community without such services. Children with working mothers turned loose on the street, nowhere to go, no one to care for them, no place to play except in alleys or streets. Characters being shaped with little sense of direction. Unwanted children turned out in our streets with no hope of a future.

Yes, the church does help, we have our Sunday

Schools and Youth organizations but how little time we have with them, even when they do find themselves under the protection of the church. Other organizations must take over the responsibility during the week.

There has been some criticism in the past regarding the fact that the social agencies have become too secular. It is my opinion that the leadership of the vast majority of our agencies is made up of men and women who look to the church for their spiritual strength. Many of the boards of these organizations have on them ministers and I have found that the minister can play an important role in shaping the policies and procedures.

Surely people do not go into the field of social work for the money they can get out of it anymore than a man chooses the ministry as an opportunity to gain wealth. Therefore, there is in the minds of these social workers a desire to do something for someone else. They see in the profession an opportunity for service. Surely there is a basic goodness in such people. They must have something of the spirit of the Galilean Carpenter who went about doing good.

A teaching that runs as a golden thread through the Bible is the idea that we are our brother's keeper. This was the teaching of the Old Testament Prophets, no man was to live unto himself. He must live and help live. Jesus built upon this foundation and gave to the world the greatest example of unselfish living. When we participate in the Community Chest first as a contributor and then in some larger capacity we are giving tangible evidence of our belief in Christ and His way of life.

We must put this drive over, and when it is done we can sit back with a certain degree of satisfaction and feel that we have been a part of a great and worthy undertaking. In the final analysis it is the people of the church who will be responsible for the success or failure of this drive. We must have faith in the cause, faith in the people and faith in ourselves.

May God's blessing be upon all who work in this tremendous task.

Methodists Plan 'Red Fringe' Ouster

By THOMAS M. ELLIOTT

The alleged "Red Fringe of Methodism" comes into nationwide notice once again, since the Methodist Federation for Social Action, the organization that inspired the charges of pro-Communism, has been notified to vacate the offices heretofore occupied by the Federation in the New York Methodist Headquarters Building.

Georgia Methodists and people of other denominations will be glad to learn of this vigorous action. All over America among Methodists a growing opposition to the Federation is apparent, and will come to a head in action to be taken by the next quadrennial session of the Methodist General Conference. The Red Fringe charge, true or false, is a severe pain in the neck to Methodism, especially south of the Mason and Dixon Line.

Churches Co-operating

Oct. 8-13 are dates set for a Bible conference at the Eastman Presbyterian Church, with Dr. F. Crossley Morgan, son of the late G. Campbell Morgan, slated for 12 lectures. All services will be held at the Eastman Methodist Church, where seating capacity is ample. At Smyrna recently a revival meeting conducted by Presbyterians was heartily supported by Baptists and Methodists, even to bulletin board advertising. During the four months needed for the construction of a new temple at Augusta the Children of Israel, a Jewish congregation in that city, are using the Trinity on the Hill Methodist Church, Fridays and Saturdays. These and other instances of church good-neighborliness in Georgia are refreshing.

Holy Heart Fires

On the first Easter Sunday two very depressed Christian believers walked to the dreary road from Jerusalem to Emmaus. A stranger joined them and walked along the way, entering upon a discussion of Old Testament scriptures as to teachings concerning the Messiah. The stranger told only of the things Moses and the Prophets had written many years before.

Later, when the two depressed believers came to realize that it was none other than the crucified and risen Christ who had walked and talked with them, they both admitted that their hearts burned within them as He spoke of Moses and the Prophets and their teachings. But you notice it was Old Testament scriptures that caused the heart burnings. So much of nominal religion today is without warmth of heart experience, simply because Christian believers don't know what's in the Old Testament.

Paris Reds Quit Direct Sabotage

PARIS, Oct. 8.—(P)—In a radical change of plan, Communists in France evidently have called off direct sabotage of rearmament because it was doing the party more harm than good.

Barely a year ago, the Cominform told the French Communists to get "hard" and there was a great purge of indifferent Communists.

One highly placed government source indicated Sunday that the orders for a "cease fire" came from Moscow about three weeks ago, accompanied by a blistering criticism. French Communists, this source said, were criticized for failure of their badly hooded determination to stop shipments of American arms into France and to stop French arms manufacture.

Further, the same informant said, they were accused of having let the sabotage policy alienate many Frenchmen who were sympathetic with other Communist aims.

Foreign sources said they knew of no direct end-of-the-sabotage orders from Moscow or elsewhere outside France. They agreed, however, that in recent weeks there had been no direct sabotage of arms shipments from America nor of arms production.

The new policy, indicated in statements of party leaders, calls for a type of attack on armament designed to please Frenchmen, not to shock them. In place of violence, the new proposals call for:

1. Union with other leftist groups, politically if necessary, to demand higher wages for workers of all classes.

2. Denouncing of rearmament as a waste of French money, a trick of American militarists bent on destruction of peaceful Russia.

Red Prison Pallor 'Lost' by Italians

UDINE, Italy, Oct. 8.—(P)—Russian police gave nine Mussolini diplomats a month's sun treatment to remove their war prison pallor before they were returned to Italy last week, one of the group related here Sunday.

The diplomats, arrested in the Italian legations at Bucharest and Sofia in 1943, came here Saturday after seven years' confinement in Russia. They were turned over to Italian authorities in Vienna by the Russians.

Armando Odenigo said they were taken from their Moscow prison on Sept. 6 and sent to Wiener Neustadt, a Soviet camp near Vienna, where they were ordered to spend their days in the sun.

PART OF ARMY PROGRAM

Two Japanese Study Economics at Emory

By GORDON SAWYER

Actually, America is fighting two wars in the Orient. One is in Korea and highly publicized. The other is in Japan, and is not well known.

The latter is a war of understanding, a strategic campaign to let the Japanese people know that we can be good neighbors as their friends as well as good warriors as their enemy.

Atlanta became a part of the second campaign this week when two Japanese students arrived at Emory University under the U. S. Army's scholarship program.

Both from Tokyo, the Japanese students are Toshio Egawa and Shigemitsu Kuriyama. The unfamiliar names, though actually not hard to pronounce, have already been laid aside by Emory students and Toshio is known as Ted while Shigemitsu carries the more familiar name George.

Oddly enough, American soil is not strange to either of the students, for they both spent some time here before the war. Ted was born in New York and lived there the first nine years of his life. George lived in Berkeley, Cal., from 1929 to 1936.

Both are economics students in Emory's graduate school, and both plan to take the knowledge they gain in the Atlanta institution back to their homeland and apply it to the positions they held before coming here.

Ted, who has a happy gift of gab even in English, was a salesman with a Japanese chemical company. And George, who speaks English quietly and fluently, will go back into the economic part of the Japanese government.

Like 26 other foreign students studying at Emory, the two new arrivals from Japan have been tossed right into the middle of American students. They are living in temporary government barracks, long before named "Lower Slobbovia" by GI students, along with students from Savannah or Atlanta or Cordele.

George and Ted were among 281 students who came to the United States this year under the Army scholarship plan and were chosen from 6,000 who took competitive tests for the educational grants.

Tax Rate Is Increased

Constitution State News Service
CARROLLTON, Oct. 8.—The city administration has set a new tax rate of 22 mills, an increase of two mills from last year.

The new rate provides for an increase of two mills for schools, an increase of one mill for general operation and a decrease of one mill in bond retirement and interest.

The increase restores a decrease that had been effected the previous year when it was reduced from 22.

"There is nothing finer than a STROMBERG-CARLSON" for your home

Maybe it happened to you last night. Or the night before. You have been watching television at friends' homes for months, and you've finally decided... "It's just too good to miss a day longer!" Fine! But perhaps you've said to yourself: "Tuning certainly should be a lot simpler..." "We want a man-sized picture..." "Can't we get a cabinet that looks more like fine furniture?"

If you want simple tuning

... see Stromberg-Carlson with the exclusive long-life tuner. Turning only one knob, with easy-to-read dial, gives you precision tuning for the clearest, sharpest, brightest pictures—on high or low band. And that's true even in difficult areas, because this exceptionally sensitive tuner controls two separate sets of tubes, one for high band and one for low band.

If you want a big, clear picture

... see Stromberg-Carlson. Whatever model you choose, you get a picture "big-as-life" on a 16-, 17-, or 19-inch tube. These pictures give greater detail and realism. Your picture is "bright-as-life," too, because the special tube face reduces glare, makes it easy on the eyes. You can enjoy Stromberg-Carlson television in any size room, close up or at a distance.

If you want true-to-life tone

... listen to Stromberg-Carlson. For years music lovers have enthused over the tonal fidelity of a Stromberg-Carlson. Now, the same audio system used in the fine Stromberg-Carlson radios goes into these television receivers. All floor models feature a 12-inch concert-type speaker—for true reproduction from the softest whisper to a full symphonic chord.

If you want smart-looking cabinets

... see Stromberg-Carlson. If you have ever said, "We simply must have a good-looking cabinet for our living room," be sure to inspect Stromberg-Carlson. For here are space-saving cabinets designed to harmonize with any good decorative plan... traditional or modern. All-wood, completely hand-rubbed... styled by famous designers.
